

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

SIR HENRY WORTH THORNTON.—K.B.E.: French Legion of Honour. President and Chairman of Board, since 1922, of the Canadian National Railways.

EDMUND ALLEN MEREDITH.—From 1846 to 1849 Principal of McGill University, Montreal. He was for many years connected with the Government, and prior to his superannuation in 1878 he was Deputy Minister of the Interior. For the pages from his Journal here published, The Dalhousie Review is indebted to the kindness of his son, Lieutenant-Colonel C. P. Meredith, of Ottawa.

CLINTON ROGERS WOODRUFF.—Chairman of the Civil Service Commission of the City of Philadelphia. A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Woodruff practices law in Philadelphia, is noted as a strong advocate of civil service and municipal reform, and has been for many years editor of The National Municipal Review.

EDWARD WILBER NICHOLS.—Professor of Classics, Dalhousie University. Author of various articles and reviews in The American Journal of Philology, etc. His article in the current issue of The Dalhousie Review on an aspect of rural life in Nova Scotia provides a companion picture to his article in an earlier number on "The Old Farm."

LENNOX MILLS.—Of Vancouver, British Columbia. Mr. Mills has recently been pursuing a course of post-graduate study at Oxford, with special reference to problems of labour and industry in their bearing upon the life of the Empire.

JOHN LINE.—Professor of Commerce and Economics, Mount Allison University.

ARCHIBALD MACMECHAN.—Head of the Department of English Literature in Dalhousie University. Author of critical editions of Sartor Resartus, Heroes and Hero-Worship, and of a volume of essays entitled The Life of a Little College. A constant contributor to literary and historical journals.

A. REGINALD MACDOUGALL.—Rhodes Scholar (from New Brunswick) at Merton College, Oxford.

VICTOR GUSTAVE PLARR.—Librarian of the College of Surgeons of England.

E. GUTHRIE PERRY.—Professor of Hebrew, Manitoba College. Prof. Perry was representative of Manitoba University at the Inauguration ceremonies of the new Hebrew University of Jerusalem.