GOAL

• Provide information on using archival material for humanities research

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

• Differentiate types of archival institutions
• Understand how to use and cite archival material
• Examine challenges and opportunities of archival research in the humanities
• Develop search strategies
• Introduce the Dal Archives’ catalogue
• Share tips for archival researchers
AGENDA

• Introductions
• Types of archives
• Using and citing primary sources
• Challenges and opportunities
• Dalhousie University Archives’ collections and services
• Dalhousie University Archives catalogue
• Research question exercise
• Tips for researchers
• Q & A

UNIVERSITY AND COLLEGE ARCHIVES

- Collect and preserve institutional memory
- Some have records management programs
- Materials in all formats
- Some have research collections (often called “manuscripts” or “special collections”)
- Typically focus research collections on specific subject areas
- Examples: Dalhousie University Archives, Clara Thomas Archives and Special Collections, York University

(Schmidt, Using Archives: A Guide to Effective Research)
GOVERNMENT ARCHIVES

- Municipal, provincial/state, federal records
- Public mandate
- Many have research collections (often called “manuscripts” or “special collections”) relevant to their geographic location and scope

Examples:
- Library and Archives Canada
- Nova Scotia Archives
- Halifax Municipal Archives

(Schmidt, Using Archives: A Guide to Effective Research)
RELIGIOUS ARCHIVES

- Traditions and institutions of major faiths, denominations, or individual places of worship
- Varying degrees of public access
- Location of records depends on approach to archives management (consolidated or federated)
- Examples: Maritime Conference Archives, Presbyterian Church in Canada Archives, Shambhala Archives

(Schmidt, Using Archives: A Guide to Effective Research)
COMMUNITY ARCHIVES AND HISTORICAL SOCIETIES

- Preserves history of a region, historical period, theme or subject
- Often managed by community volunteers or "lone arrangers"
- Examples: Canadian Lesbian and Gay Archives, Mahone Bay Settlers Museum, Duxbury Rural and Historic Society
MUSEUM ARCHIVES

- Museums and archives share similar goals but collect different types of material and use different standards and best practices
- Some museums include libraries and/or archives in addition to their collections of artifacts and/or artwork
- Some archives have museum objects in their archival collections
- Many museum archives in Nova Scotia
- Examples: Canadian Museum of History, Cole Harbour Heritage Farm Museum

(Schmidt, Using Archives: A Guide to Effective Research)
CORPORATE ARCHIVES

- Usually a department of a company that collects and preserves institutional memory
- Serve the needs of the company
- Varying degrees of public access
- Examples: ScotiaBank Archives, Siemens Corporate Archives

(Schmidt, Using Archives: A Guide to Effective Research)
HOW TO FIND ARCHIVAL INSTITUTIONS

- Directory of Archives (Canadian Council of Archives)
- Members’ Map (Council of Nova Scotia Archives)
- Directory of Corporate Archives in the United States and Canada (Society of American Archivists)
- Directory of Archival Organization (Society of American Archivists)
- Internet searches
USING PRIMARY SOURCES
INTEGRATING PRIMARY SOURCES INTO ASSIGNMENTS

• Evidence to back up a statement that supports your thesis
• Compare and contrast information over time and space
• Enhance your project with historical photographs
• Research methodology involving critical and/or comprehensive examination of archival sources
INTEGRATING PRIMARY SOURCES INTO ASSIGNMENTS

- Document analysis
- Annotated bibliographies
- Understand creative/artistic process (draft manuscripts, production records, research material, etc.)
- Cite evidence of the evolution of an idea or way of thinking
- Sources for text/data mining
  - Text
  - Metadata (archival descriptions)

CITING PRIMARY SOURCES

• You can’t just download your citations…
• Use a style guide
  • Chicago Manual of Style
  • MLA Handbook
  • APA Publication Manual
• Chicago: Place the cited item first [in a note]
  • There is no general agreement on the sequence of the remaining elements in the citation
• Check your department for guidance
• Check the journal, publishing company, etc.
CITING PRIMARY SOURCES

• Be consistent throughout your work once you adopt a sequence

• Note: Correspondence from Henry Davies Hicks to the Annapolis County electorate, October 24, 1956, MS-2-511, Box 15, Folder 9, Henry Davies Hicks fonds, Dalhousie University Archives, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.

• Bibliography: Henry Davies Hicks fonds, MS-2-511. Dalhousie University Archives, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.
TEACHING WITH PRIMARY SOURCES

• “As a result of their reluctance to acknowledge the interrelationship between the text and its packaging, faculty and librarians have overlooked the pedagogical advantages of using rare materials and book history to further students’ understanding of subjects within a variety of disciplines.”

(Schmiesing and Hollis, 2002)
TEACHING WITH PRIMARY SOURCES

- Studies have shown that students are ready to engage with primary sources early in their university career
- Focus on course goals, learning objectives, and weekly schedule
- Use as examples for lectures and seminars
- Inquiry-based learning (start with questions, not “facts”)
- Active learning techniques
- Primary source analysis worksheets

(Pugh & Rockenbach, 2011; Learn NC, Teaching with primary sources)
TEACHING WITH PRIMARY SOURCES

• Document analysis activities (research skills development)
• Brainstorming activities (start a new unit with a primary source)
• Cross-curricular activities (collaborate with colleagues)
• Current events (“what is past is prologue”)
• Geography activities (context is everything)
• “Not-so-famous person report” (David Walbert)

(Lee Ann Potter, Integrating OurDocuments.gov into the Classroom)

X-RAY TECHNIQUE READS BURNT VESUVIUS SCROLL

LANGUAGE AND SCRIPTS

- Humanities research may require proficiency in multiple languages and/or scripts
- Archival collections often have multilingual material
- Cultural evolution of languages and communication
- Paleography: Study of ancient and historical handwriting
- Digitization and transcription of handwritten material is challenging and expensive but extremely rewarding
ORDER OF PASSAGE

ELIZA OULTON BY
THE OTTOMAN
EMPIRE, O’Brien
Family fonds (MS-4-242, Box 2, Folder 3, Item 1)
MATERIAL TYPE AND FORMAT

- Many documentary formats in archives
  - Text (papyrus, parchment, pulp, etc…)
  - Sound recordings (vinyl, cassette, etc.)
  - Moving images (film, video, etc…)
  - Still images (tintype, print, negative, etc.)
  - Technical drawings
  - Research data
- Archives may require advance notice for certain materials
- Surrogates or alternative sources may be provided
ACCESS RESTRICTIONS

• Donors can impose access or use restrictions
• Archivists can impose access or use restrictions
• FOIPOP requests
• Ethics agreements
• Access may be prohibited due to lack of equipment or preservation concerns
• Uncatalogued “backlog” is professionally unacceptable but exists virtually everywhere
“ONE OF A KIND” OPPORTUNITIES

• Archival materials can distinguish your work
• Primary sources enhance your usage of secondary sources
• Use archives to present new answers and perspectives
• Archives can facilitate cross-disciplinary research
• You may have a serendipitous “discovery”
• You may find a possible career path in archives, museums, or libraries
DIGITAL HUMANITIES

- Unprecedented access to archival materials
- Technology enables new research methodologies
- Data visualisation
- Data/text mining
- Digital mapping
- Statistical analysis
- Major advances in archival description standards and best practices
DAL ARCHIVAL COLLECTIONS

- Almost 7 kilometres of physical records
  - Textual records
  - Sound recordings
  - Film and videos
  - Photographs
  - Technical drawings and plans
- Over 15 TB of digital records
  - Digitization projects
  - Born digital records
- Strengths in 19th and 20th century Maritime Canadian sources
DAL ARCHIVAL COLLECTIONS

- University records
- Faculty papers
- Theatre and culture / Literature
- Business archives
- Medical archives
- Labour archives / Citizen action groups
- Environment, oceans, and sustainability
- Maritime history archives
- Women’s archives
GUIDE TO MAJOR RESEARCH COLLECTIONS

• Organizes collections into broad thematic areas

• Each page contains:
  • Summary of collection area
  • List of key subjects
  • List of featured collections
  • Citations for published research that references collections of interest
DAL ARCHIVES SERVICES

• Archives and Special Collections Reference Desk
  • Research assistance
  • Place materials on reserve
  • Photocopy and scanning requests
• Guide to major research collections
• Archives catalogue and online collections
• Guide to archival research
• Class instruction
• Support for archives assignments
ARCHIVES CATALOGUE

- Fully searchable database of “finding aids” to Dal Archives collections
- 155,000+ archival descriptions
- Digital archives embedded into catalogue records on an ongoing basis
- Map of collections
- Quality of data varies
- Feedback is strongly encouraged!

SEARCH STRATEGIES
FUNDAMENTALS

• Searching for archives is not like searching for journal articles

• Search for archives is just like searching for journal articles!
  • Focus your research question
  • Break your question into concepts
  • Identify subject headings/keywords for each concept
  • Manage your search results/citations

• Check other catalogues/websites

• Write an email, pick up the phone, drop by…

NARROW
SEARCH EXERCISE
CATALOGUE SEARCH EXERCISE

• Write down your research question
• Break your research question into concepts (back to the fundamentals!)
• Brainstorm keywords for each concept
• Start with simple search
• Use AND/OR in basic search box
• Use quotations to search for phrases
• Build searches using advanced search page

Tip: Refer to the Research Bootcamp Foundations, Part 1 slides and exercise sheet
GENERAL TIPS

• Start with clear information about the type and scope of archival materials needed to support your project

• Spend time becoming comfortable with document analysis, paleography, languages and scripts, research methods, and other skills that will help you conduct archival research and use archival sources

• Consult with archivists during every phase of your project

(Library and Archives Canada, 2008)
NOTE TAKING TIPS

• Notes should include:
  • Name of institution
  • Manuscript collection/record group
  • Series and/or file title
  • Date(s) of material
  • Reference codes
  • Exact title or description of the item
  • Annotation of the information that interests you

• Make sure factual data and quotations that you intend to use are recorded in full

(Library and Archives Canada, 2008)
NOTE TAKING TIPS

• Record complete citations for all materials referenced, even the material you do not intend to use

• Consider writing summary notes for each collection you consulted
  • Chronological scope and arrangement
  • Whether all or only part was checked
  • Items which you plan to use
  • Those which are irrelevant

(Library and Archives Canada, 2008)
TIPS FOR RESEARCH TRIPS

- Plan every detail in advance
- Research the collections in advance
- Engage the institution in advance
- Prioritize your research activities
- Ajust your priorities accordingly
- Request reproductions for key material
- Ask many questions while you are visiting
- Talk to your professors, advisors, mentors, etc.
- Imagine yourself wishing you had access again
- Observe habits of other researchers
- Notes, notes, notes, notes…
