

NOTES

1. Being and Time. MARTIN HEIDEGGER. Tuebingen: Max Niemeyer, 1927. Pp. 437 (now in its 10th edition).
2. Existence and Being. MARTIN HEIDEGGER. Trans., Douglas Scott, R. F. C. Hull and Alan Crick, with a lengthy introduction by Werner Brock. London: Vision Press, 1949. Pp. 392. (Now available in Gateway paperback: $1.95)
3. Introduction to Metaphysics. MARTIN HEIDEGGER. Trans., Ralph Manheim. New Haven: Yale University Press, 1959. Pp. 214. $4.00. (Also in Anchor paperback $95.)
4. Kant and the Problem of Metaphysics. MARTIN HEIDEGGER. Trans., James S. Churchill. Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 1962. Pp. 255. $7.50 (paper $2.45).
5. Being and Time. MARTIN HEIDEGGER. Trans., John Macquarrie and Edward Robinson. New York: Harper & Row, 1962. Pp. 589. $12.50.
6. Discourse on Thinking. MARTIN HEIDEGGER. Trans., John M. Anderson and E. Hans Freund. New York: Harper & Row, 1966. Pp. 93. $3.50.
7. Ueber Abraham a Santa Clara. MARTIN HEIDEGGER. Stadt Messkirch: Heuberg Druckerei, 1964, p. 4. (My own translation.)
8. Die Kunst der Interpretation. Emil Staiger. Zurich: Atlantis Verlag, 1957, p. 48. (My own translation.)

AT A BIRTHDAY PARTY

Robert Beum

For the wasted seed, for the children never to wake to the bird or singing bough or wake or sleep in the sleep
 in October mist;
 for those hushed in the darkness, unborn
 to this house or the earth, silenced well
 to the surf washing starfish,
 to mill whistle mornings;
 more than blind, who might have read pennies and cats' eyes and the neighbour girls'; for these, too many
 for any house or measured earth, may silences
 live in our speech and loud birthdays.