

Dear Sir Liverpool 31. Oct. 1783

... I forgot to mention you would write to Mr. McGregor, he is very impatient, says he must take another method with you he tells me his friends advise him to ~~advise~~ put the whole story in the newspapers - I have got his name, he seems to have advised it as possible, I do not know that there is any objection for referring it to Mr. Black & Magee after letting it lay over so long, Mr. Jenson may think it strange you did not take this trade of dividing it long ago - all that you can do is to procure as long a date as possible for Bayl. I hope your lecture on the divinity has increased your reputation. Mr. Smith has discharged his business long ago. Mr. Curdy should visit, and been very fortunate, I am glad he has put his favourite plan in execution - and taken up a great quantity of paper from a vessel that of week low, some where it is now a fortnight since the date of your letter from London, I shall expect you in a few days, the 10. of November is near, and I would not like to go to Dublin till I see you, but we know if you have remitted any money to there will be a good deal of quietude Northampton, did you see Elmsford for as Green Bay
