

Dear Sir

The Beane comes for your Trunks to put on board the vessel.

I have not had any answer to my letter yesterday concerning the sailing of the Thames of Sunday, however Mr Lee says the man tells him we were to go in the Clyde of 150 Tons which Mr Burns to Gulliver a few negotiations came up in a few days ago he says we will have good accommodation & the Capt is a good man. I will make the Beane's ^{affair} engine particularly when we sail & give orders for our Beds to be preserved for us. and when he returns he can call on you & give you all the information necessary. & you can

Mr. Lee's
London

Mr. Lee's
London

Mr. Lee's
London

give him any orders you wish concerning the business

Yours Sincerely

J. Graham

22.th

N.B. The People in the house who are well acquainted with the carriage of Baggage say that all your Trunks & my 2 Portmanteaus will easily go in a Hackney Coach therefore order your heavy Trunks to be put under
:death first. D.G.