

NEWFOUNDLAND JOURNEY

Edward Hagerman

boxes line the shore symmetrical shapes round coastline contours homes for six hundred and twenty-four but boxes as a train bends round the bay to add to the harmony more boxes against square hills then slowly disappears while women in square houses clean bare floors sweep neat piles of dirt through their doors