

About the Contributors

Ronald Blanchard

Ronald Blanchard has just completed his Combined Honours in History and International Development Studies. His academic interests lie in mid-twentieth century African and global history and the history of slavery.

Lucy Boyd

Lucy Boyd is in her fourth year at the University of King's College and Dalhousie, studying Early Modern Studies and History. She is particularly interested in the historical intersections between gender and religion, and the social and personal impacts of convents.

Elli Brown

Elli Brown has just finished her second year at Dalhousie, where she is pursuing a major in History and a minor in Computer Science. She is fascinated by all fields of history, but especially enjoys contemporary social history and historical linguistics.

Cassandra Burbine

Cassandra Burbine is currently pursuing a Combined Honours in English and History with a Minor in Early Modern Studies. She is fascinated by archival sciences and cares deeply about Canadian literature.

Anna Gaudet

Anna Gaudet is a fourth-year student completing a Combined Honours degree in ESS (Environment, Society, and Sustainability) and History, with a minor in Early Modern Studies. Her historical research focuses on how self-perception influences societal and structural change, particularly through a post-colonial lens.

Gideon Morton

Gideon Morton is a fourth-year History student, with a minor in the History of Science and Technology. His interest in history is very broad, but mostly contained to the Modern era with a special interest in anything he does not know about the twentieth century.

Megan Osler

Megan Osler has just completed her combined honours in Early Modern Studies and History with a Certificate in Art History and Visual Culture. She is interested in female voices in the Early Modern period, Catholic, devotional art and sometimes likes to read Spinoza.

Amy Paleczny

Amy Paleczny is pursuing a Bachelor of Arts at Dalhousie University, with a major in History and a minor in Political Science. She has been accepted into the Honours program for her final year and is planning on specializing in second-wave feminism and the historiography of gender and political activism.

Drew Stanley

Drew Stanley is in her fourth year at University of King's College. She studies Psychology and the History of Science and Technology and next year she will be starting her Masters at the University of St Andrews.

Ireland Wright

Ireland Wright is a fourth-year student with Honours in History, and a minor in Anthropology. She has an interest in historical memory and its use in different contexts, especially in relation to the Holocaust and Russia.

Ellen Yarr

Ellen Yarr just finished the third year of her major in LJSO (Law, Justice, and Society), and minor in Gender Studies. Her academic interests involve interactions between marginalized populations and the law.
