The foundation of the Halifax Mechanics' Institute on 27th December, 1831, and of the Nova Scotian Literary and Scientific Society about 1859 (the latter published its transactions from 4th January to 3rd December, 1859) led up to the establishment of the Nova Scotian Institute of Natural Science in December, 1862.

Note.—The first general meeting of the Nova Scotian Institute of Natural Science was held at Halifax, on 31st December, 1862. On 4th March, 1890, the name of the Society was changed to the Nova Scotian Institute of Science, and it was incorporated by an act of the legislature in the same year.

Since 1879 the Presidents of the Institute have been ex-officio Fellows of the Royal Microscopical Society.
