GLEE CLUB STAGES FINEST PERFORMANCE IN YEARS

Egbert Defends Attack on Girls

Letter to Forum

Mr. Editor:
I admire "Dalhousie Girl," for her weak and uncomprehensive reply, because she, in spite of her errors of interpretation, showed herself to be possessed of something which so few girls of today have, an admirable character, for has she not taken the part of her kind, in a simple and straight-forward manner? The real culprit, who assumes herself to be the dream and aspiration of every male student, cringed behind this fortress, neither defending herself nor in all fairness to herself and the other girls admitting her mistake. If it were not for a few like "Dalhousie Girl," Egbert would be a pronounced misogynist, but in this child of nature we have truly a woman, a woman "as was."

Admiring her stand, as I do, I must not, however, allow her to misrepresent my statements. One fault she has in common with the rest of her genus, is the ability to twist and intercept things, until they suit the egotistical train of thought. Taking her letter clause for clause I will reply.

I. At the recent law dance, there were thirty-two law students,—those who had to pay only a quarter more; the other hundred and twenty or so had to pay the dollar and a quarter extra. So we can see that only about one-fifth of those attending were affected.

II. As to cigarettes, I merely said that the extra dollar and a quarter would be a week's smoking, if we took it that way; nothing whatsoever as to smoking in the gym or the hotel was mentioned.

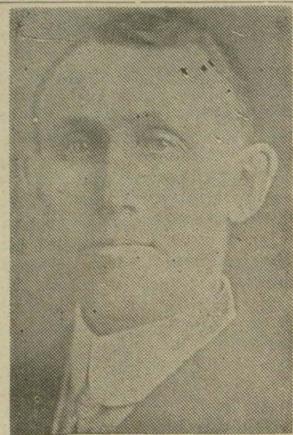

III. Sure, just as I said, none of the girls would want to take a taxi, as walking is just the thing. My my, if the Hall girls cannot walk two hundred yards the equalization of woman is over. The women are asserting their rights, striving, almost breaking their necks to keep up with the men. Even in sport they have their ice hockey, their track, etc. Why Egbert would not be surprised to see them out for football soon. But walking oh dear no, they gladly admit their inferiority. What a difference an evening dress can make.

IV. This is what Egbert realizes—that the rooms are $5.00, and that every law made yet has been broken, and in nine cases out of ten, a woman has been the cause of it!

V. Now! now! I'm not a modiste, for I was just saying that along with the other expenses, (at any dance) you would not have to figure in the cost of pressing, hair-cut, etc., as the laundries do a good job free.

Budding Barristers Ball Is Success

On Wednesday, Nov. 9th, 1932, the Nova Scotian Hotel was the gay scene of the Budding Barristers' Ball. It came up to all expectations based on the former reputation of the Law Students to "throw a party." It was a great dance, as all Law Dances are. Everyone enjoyed themselves from all appearances, even the "budding barristers." Supper was served in the main dining room of the Hotel which was a wonderful improvement over the rush and grab of former years.

The Hagarty Orchestra supplied excellent music, and plenty of it. And what music! All the latest hits and old favorites. The chaperones for the evening were: Dean and Mrs. S. E. Smith, Prof. and Mrs. H. E. Read, Prof. and Mrs. V. C. MacDonald, Prof. and Mrs. J. T. MacQuarrie, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Murphy.

The success of the dance is due to the capable Dance Committee, consisting of Jerry Coleman, Bill Jost and Charlie Miller.

French Cercle Will Meet Nov 17

The evening's entertainment will be followed by a dance. Refreshments will be served.

Tanton Breaks Arm in First Period

Score 14 - 0

Outclassed in everything but fighting spirit Dalhousie lost a 14-0 decision game to one of the finest teams Caledonia has ever produced. This defeat gives Caledonia the privilege of playing the University of New Brunswick in the McCurdy Cup finals, emblematic of the Maritime Title.

While the visiting collegians were a much heavier team, noticeable when the teams lined up, the speed and trickery of the Caledonians soon had the Collegians at a disadvantage. A further disadvantage was added to the Collegians task when Tanton, one of the best of Dal's forwards had his arm broken after ten minutes of play. Continuing to play, in great pain, until half time it was discovered that Tanton had a complete fracture of the arm between the wrist and elbow. The arm was fixed and Tanton was removed from the game.

Despite a stubborn defence the Caledonians scored twice in the first period when Johnny who had a large part in directing the Freshman Glee Club Show on Monday evening.

DR. RONALD HAYES

Vey and "Coot" McLean each made a try. Score 6-0.

In the second period the weakened Collegians were no match for the Caledonians who added 8 more points as Vey and Art McDonald scored and Nicholson made the convert. Score 14-0.

Ray Smith was the referee and did a good job of the game.

The Honour System At Dalhousie

For over forty years now, written work and examinations at several of the great American universities have been conducted under what is known as the honour system.

An examination taking place under its rules is conducted without the surveillance of professors or proctors; students may enter or leave the classroom at will, write their papers in the places most convenient for them, and are free at all times to do as they will. When a student has finished writing the examination, he simply signs the honour statement, giving his word as a gentleman that he has neither given nor received aid in that examination.

A professor is rarely in the room during the course of a quiz; students converse freely with one another, get up and leave the room, if they wish, for a cigarette or a cup of coffee. With the advent of Spring and warmer weather many of the papers are written out of doors, on the lawns.

The advantages of this method are not many, but great. The tension complementary to an examination is practically eliminated; there is a feeling of mutual cooperation between professor and pupil; it builds up the self-respect of the student by relying entirely upon his word; and destroys the feeling of suspicion and distrust prevalent at this time.

There is one disadvantage—one that is always put forth, i. e., it makes cribbing incredibly easy. To answer this, digression is necessary. Using random figures, not proven statistics, let us say that fifty per cent of the students are eminently upright, and under no condition would they cheat. The other fifty per cent is shady. Given to cribbing. But of this latter half, which now cheats freely and conscience-free under the near-sighted eye of the professor-wardens, what percentage would combine cheating with the damnation of their word?

Moreover, under the covenant of the honour system, each student is pledged to report (in secrecy) the name of any pupil whom he has observed cheating. A favourite query at this point is, "Does any student ever tell on another?" The answer is "yes". But it might be added that rarely indeed is a student forced to do this.

Whether or not the honour system would be acceptable to the faculty and undergraduates of Dalhousie is not known, but it would be interesting to have a few opinions expressed via the "Forum." Adoption of this system would be a radical and broad-minded step, and could be accomplished only with the unanimous approval and whole-hearted cooperation of students and professors alike.

Dalhousians Pay Tribute To War Heroes At Service

Roll Honor is Read

Last Thursday, Dalhousians gathered in the gymnasium to pay tribute to the hallowed memory of their glorious dead, who made the supreme sacrifice during the World War, 1914-18. President Carleton Stanley conducted the memorial service. A short address was given by Dr. Archibald MacMechan. In the course of his remarks he stated that of the six hundred Dalhousians who served in the World War, one out of every ten gave up his life. Col. W. E. Thompson, honorary secretary of the Board of Governors, read the roll of honor.

University Book Club Now Open To Dal Students

In his address to the University, the President made reference to a Book Club that was being established as a means of providing new books not provided by Departmental Purchases for the Library.

The first orders of books have arrived and books will be issued to members after Wed. this week.

The regular subscription is five dollars. Special subscription for students, giving all privileges of the Club, Three Dollars.

Subscriptions will be received by Professor Bennett, Studley, or Dr. Hayes, Forrest Building.

C. O. T. C. Notes

There was a fair attendance at "A" Company's parade last Wednesday night, and several recruits were signed on. Col. Read has offered a prize to the platoon having the best attendance during the year. This should be an incentive to a better showing on parade. Candidates for "A" and "B" certificates were given some drill instruction as well as the regular lectures.

The Sunday morning tactical exercises will doubtless prove to be an interesting feature of the programme; but it is to be regretted that so few turned out last Sunday. Everyone out next time—they are well worth going to, in fact it is impossible to pass your examinations for "A" or "B" certificates without having attended.

Our aim is to make a bigger and better C. O. T. C.—won't you help by turning out tonight?

C. D. Shipley Gives Illustrated Lecture

On Monday night in the Gymnasium, the Freshman Class of '36 presented a miniature musical and dramatic review. The first scene, "How'dy" showed originality and was a "hello" from the class of '36.

The second act was a pleasing chorus and routine dance by a number of Freshmen and Freshettes. Next came a clever re-creation of a radio programme as offered by the well known "Street Singer" interpreted by Gerry Naugler, a song and dance by Pat MacDonald as Cab Calloway, and a piano solo by Gerry Naugler.

Next came a short farce, "Atlanta in Wimbledon," in which the leading parts were taken by Charlotte Lyle and George Murphy, ably supported by Pat MacDonald, Neil Higgins, H. Goode, A. Fraser and Don Forbes.

Following this a number of Freshettes as mannequins staged a fashion show displaying the latest styles in afternoon and evening wear.

The programme came to a conclusion with a brief skit entitled "His First Client" starring Bill Scott, Allan Duffus and Connie Jost.

As usual the evening wound up with a short period of dancing. Previous to the opening of the Glee Club programme Mr. Shipley, the Secretary of the M.P.B.A.A.U. of C. gave a brief talk on the Olympic Games and also showed some films taken at the games held in Los Angeles.

Dawson Club Holds Regular Meeting

The Dawson Club held their regular meeting in Room 51 at lecture hour on Monday. Mr. Claude Howse presided, Professor Douglas was also present.

If sufficient cars can be obtained, the club decided to go to Governors Lake on Saturday, 19th.

On Friday 18th, at 7 p. m., the members are invited to go to the home of Professor and Mrs. Douglas at Bedford.

Invitations were also received from Mr. Thomas Williams to visit the Gold Mines at Moosehead, and from Mr. W. M. Webster. These invitations have not been accepted as yet. It was suggested by Professor Douglas to accept Mr. Webster's invitation and to hold the meeting sometime in March, when papers would be read by lady students.

COMPULSORY PHYSICAL TRAINING.

Dalhousie students are very fortunate in that they have the opportunity to use the finest gymnasium this side of Montreal. Every facility has been included in this modern building, and the Board of Governors have spared no expense to equip it completely. But the fact remains that a sufficient number of students do not make use of it. The question immediately arises—how can this be remedied?

Compulsory physical training for the first two years at least has been mooted many times at Dalhousie; but in the past adequate facilities have not been available. The time has now come when a systematic method of exercise by every undergraduate is possible and steps should be taken at once to install such a plan at Dalhousie.

The advantages of such a system are self-evident. All average individuals wishing to have healthy, well-balanced personalities require an equal education of mind and muscle. A one-sided education—that of mere book knowledge alone—soon becomes valueless without the necessary physical complement. An all round developed body is essential; and except for those who are athletes the "ordinary undergraduate's exercise is largely confined to the gyrations on the dance floor, or the daily sprint to the nine o'clock class." This is a situation which should not exist, and demands immediate action of remedy.

The actual details of the plan can be worked out in such a manner as to afford each student at least two hours per week of organized physical activity; a full time instructor is already on the campus. Thus the possibility of compulsory physical training at least for freshmen and sophomores seems to commend itself to the attention of the authorities.

DOUBTFUL HUMOR.

The Students at the University of Toronto have recently stated in no uncertain terms their wishes in regard to the quality of material to be published in their daily paper; and in a symposium of student opinion expressed the desire for the publication of doubtful humor.

A student newspaper should confine itself to University news on a level with the intelligence of its readers, and it should avoid, at all costs, the publication of too much material of a high intellectual standard. A college paper is by no means an uplifting organization or a Sunday School handbill but an organ for the expression of student opinion; and if student opinion leans more or less towards "doubtful humor," there should be no complaint against the publication of a certain amount of it. Evidently college students depend on other sources for their uplift and culture and, perish the thought, we must conclude that they do not wish to be elevated and etherealized.

Dalhousie is as yet untroubled with any such problems and while it is to be admitted that a certain brand of humor is necessary in any college publication, we cannot see the necessity of including any jokes of doubtful character or vintage.

POLITICS AND INTERFERENCE.

In the last issue of the Gazette we commented on the disgraceful conditions prevailing in the politics and athletics at Dalhousie. We have not received any criticism in regard to this comment, so we presume that there is some foundation for our convictions. Neither the elected representatives of the students nor the students themselves have made any efforts to refute the statements of the Gazette. Therefore we feel justified in saying that they agree with us.

There must be something vitally wrong when such a condition prevails in a university with the record and standing which Dalhousie holds. We believe that the trouble rests with the students themselves. They have degenerated into a mob of uninterested men and women. They have now arrived at the stage where they do not consider the welfare of the university which is educating them, but only their own comfort and happiness. They care not whether the University is famous for its graduates, or the ability of its debaters, or the prowess of its athletic representatives. They do not mind if the public criticizes unjustly the actions of the students. The main thought in the mind of most undergraduates is to enjoy themselves, pass a few stupid examinations in subjects they are not interested in, and finally to graduate with a degree of some sort.

We feel that the student governing body should make some efforts to arouse interest in the students and take steps to remedy this deplorable situation. It is not only a disgrace to the University but also to the Council which is directly responsible for the students. We venture to say that the reason the Council does not do this is because they are not willing to risk their own popularity for the sake of Dalhousie.

For some years now, the affairs of the students have been in a sorry mess. At this stage in the game there are outside groups taking a far too active hand in student politics. Students outside these groups are disregarded, and ability has been replaced by popularity. Apparently the students will not do anything themselves. We ask the Students' Council to act.

COMMENT

Russian vs Canadian Timber.

Whither Europe?

An Archaeological Discovery.

Russian vs Canadian Timber.

English Ministers are having a hard time explaining the denunciation of the Russian trade agreements. It seems quite clear that, for the purposes of British exporting industries, Canadian lumber is inferior to European. Mr. Chamberlain points out that the action was taken in order to "safeguard the exports of timber from Canada to this country from competition under unfair conditions from Russia." However, this does not satisfy those who, while admitting his sincerity, say that this is not reason enough to force on the British market timber which is neither wanted nor of high enough quality. Mr. Baldwin appeared to be under an economic illusion, arguing that because England has not a visible favorable balance of trade with Russia, it is therefore only necessary to have a better proportion of the trade. Mr. Thomas probably gave the best explanation. He said that the denunciation need not interfere with common sense agreements, but that it was the outcome of the Ottawa agreements that the preferences there entered into should not be frustrated by the State action of other countries. The Moscow comments are indeed far from friendly.

Whither Europe?

The London Observer has recently published an article written by that eminent English journalist, J. L. Garvin, in which the future of peace in Europe is analyzed with singular perspicuity and grimness. Whither Europe?—is the heading of the article, the answer—On present lines the peace of Europe is almost sure to perish in another catastrophe before the end of another half-decade. Another European War cannot be prevented unless the Versailles Treaty is revised by peaceful means and in time. Disarmament by itself would not avert war. The key-word of peace is Revision and Revision by consent. The Versailles Treaty contained two antagonistic parts, one good and one bad. One part established the League of Nations; the other part aimed at the dismemberment and weakening of the Reich for good. Without Revision of the eastern frontiers of Germany as drawn by the Machiavellian dictates of her conquerors, the worst part of the Treaty is bound to destroy the better part which established the League. As Mr. Garvin points out these are fearful truths, but someone must speak them.

An Archaeological Discovery.

In the opening lines of the sixth book of Virgil's Aeneid, the fleet have glided into Euboean Cumea's shore, good Aeneas "makes for the hill-top, where aloft sits en'broned Apollo, and a cavern vast, the far lone haunt of the dread Sibyl....." This grotto of the Cumaean Sibyl has been discovered near Naples, by Professor Mauri. The description in the Aeneid tallies so closely, with the actual grotto discovered that competent critics feel certain that Vergil had seen it. It thus appears that the ancient myths are not so unhistorical as we usually assume them to be. In any event, this discovery, one of the most dramatic of modern archaeology, will be of intense interest to those interested in the ancient classics.

She: What would you do if I should cry?
He: I'd hang out a sign, "Wet Paint."

Prof: "Wake that fellow up next to you, will you?"
Student: "Aw, do it yourself, you put him to sleep."

Complexity

Examinations.

Manners.

Snitchers.

Examinations.

With only a few weeks left before we are plunged into the Mid-year Examinations we take pause for a brief thought on the examination system. The long written exams such as held at universities are sometimes the cause of nervous break-downs and strains with the result that some undergraduates are terrified at the very word "examinations." Some of the world's greatest educationalists have condemned the examination system but maintain that it should be used until some better system can be developed. Just about this time of the year most university students are wishing that someone would hurry up with a new system.

Manners.

Manners at Dalhousie have been gradually declining so that at the present time we might even say they are entirely lacking. The old courtesy of touching the hat to a lady has been almost forgotten. No one would think of holding a door open for a girl. Why should they? The girls are just as capable of doing so as they are. These little acts of politeness are not in the list of habits of the average Dalhousian. Even members of the faculty receive no better treatment or respect from some of the men who come to this University to "learn how to live." The great need, as we see it, is a department giving lectures in Etiquette 1, 2, 3 and 4. Then sophomores would be eligible for advanced classes such as Chivalry 8 and Decency 7, 9 and 11.

Snitchers.

Snitchers are those people who steal things from other people's lockers in the gymnasium. Snitchers are the kind of people who give the College a bad name. There ought to be a law against Snitchers. Unsuspecting people pay for a locker and hope that it will be a safe place to leave their gymnasium kit, but they are soon disillusioned. In a few days someone walks away with their one and only towel. By the end of the second week one is lucky if one still has a sweater and a pair of sneakers.

Yet, there must be something admirable about these Snitchers. They are the wild gay highwaymen of the present day. They smile and laugh we suppose; and then when you are not looking they get away with your shorts. Nice fellows! One young pirate has developed his racket so thoroughly that he must have the complete list of figures of all the lockers, for he is exceptionally careful to open the lockers with the best sweaters and the newest shoes. This is the sort of chap we need around Dalhousie. Nice clean brotherly sort of fellow who pats you on the back and then steals your hat. Nice fellows, these Snitchers.

Ad Astra

A view of international politics, different from that usually seen, is presented in "Six Hours to Live," the feature which starts today at the Capitol Theatre. It shows stronger nations imposing their will, by force of might, although it may mean the absolute ruination of smaller countries.

Warner Baxter is cast in the role of representative of a tiny republic, who battles valiantly against intrigues and plots to save his fatherland from utter ruin.

There is a strong romantic strain running through the story centering about the struggle between Baxter and John Boles for the love of the beautiful Miriam Jordan, the new English actress. This is her first picture, and she is launched auspiciously in the feminine lead.

George Marion, Beryl Mercer and Irene Ware, are other prominent players in important character parts. William Dieterle is the director.

Scanning Our Contemporaries.

In order to eradicate repetition of faculties as well as to reduce student fees, the Universities of the Prairie Provinces are considering an amalgamation. The proposal was made by Premier Browlee of the Province of Alberta, and has met with considerable approval. The scheme has not yet been thoroughly discussed by the three University heads, as the President of the University of Manitoba is now very much occupied with an investigation into the financial status of the college. If a satisfactory arrangement can be reached by the three Universities, the plan will no doubt mean a great saving for the students. The idea is as follows:—"That the province having the most adequate resources for a certain faculty undertake to specialize along these lines. All students who wish to specialize in this work, must go to the appointed University and finish up, there. Due to the fact that there will be no repetition of faculties the costs to students will be at a minimum. For example: Alberta owing to its rich mineral deposits might be appointed to specialize in mining, or perhaps Manitoba in business training in view of the large commercial center at Winnipeg. However all arguments pro and con will have to be thrashed out, in order to test the feasibility of the proposal.

AD ASTRA

Starting Saturday at the same Theatre will be shown for the first time at popular prices, Vicki Baum's "Grand Hotel," with what is possibly the greatest constellation of stars ever to appear in one picture. As in the stage production, the locale is confined to a large Berlin Hotel, and in this respect the film is unique, as the entire gamut of tragedy, crime, love, pathos, and comedy takes place within its palatial lobby and luxurious rooms. It is rather remarkable too, that although Greta Garbo, John and Lionel Barrymore, Joan Crawford, and Wallace Beery are stars in their own rights, and accustomed to an undivided spotlight, they seem to work in whole-hearted co-operation. Lionel Barrymore steals the picture. Magnificently directed by Edmund Goulding.

Today and tomorrow at the Garrick, George Arliss is starring in "A Successful Calamity." Mr. Arliss, a wealthy financier, pretends to his family that he is completely bankrupt in order to curb the extravagance and hectic

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Orpheus Theatre will present "That's My Boy," with a cast headed by Richard Cromwell, Dorothy Jordan, and Mae Marsh. The story deals with the trials and tribulations of a national football hero when collegiate commercialism threatens to bring him disgrace. An added attraction will be the first of a series of comedies produced by the Lambs Gambols. This is a two reel music comedy, with music by Victor Herbert and starring Lois Moran, Victor Moore and William Maxton, stars of the present Pulitzer Prize production "Of Thee I Sing."

The Students' Forum.

Mr Editor

Dear Sir:—

I would like, first of all, to commend the bold stand taken by Egbert. There is certainly a great need for reform in the present Student Council. The great trouble, I believe, lies in the fact that the majority of the members are elected not because of their ability but because of their popularity. A great example of inefficiency took place a short time ago. The interfaculty football manager informed a team manager late one night that a game would take place the next day. Although greatly inconvenienced the team manager assembled his team. Then when both teams had gotten ready, they found that another team had the use of the field. Is this how the interfaculty manager works in the interests of the students?

To conclude this letter I would like to know how those sophomores were admitted to the Public Speaking Club when about 25 other students were turned away because the membership was reserved for senior students? Would I be too bold to suggest string pulling? And why were Dal debaters excluded from our representation to the Model League of Nations?

Yours truly,

U. K. C. Notes

At a recent meeting of the King's College Athletic Association, Mr. Fred Godfrey was elected manager of the hockey team. Providing enough men show a real interest in hockey this year, a team will be entered in the city league. King's has plenty of excellent material for a team, and if the enthusiasm of the men is sufficient to balance the inconvenience of practice hours, then the team will enter and make its presence felt in the league.

The six-mile road race, which is an annual event holding great interest for the students, will take place on Saturday, Nov. 19. In this race there is class competition as well as personal competition.

A very pleasant evening of badminton was spent in the King's gym on Thursday, November 10th, when the College Badminton Club was host to members of the St. Luke's Club. After the matches, which were merely friendly games, refreshments were served in the Co-eds Residence.

Mr Editor:

The football season is nearly over now, and little has been done to organize an effective rooting section of the students. Dalhousie has been very sadly lacking in this branch of development and when we venture to compare the cheering support given to our team with that given by other Maritime universities—well, it just doesn't exist.

Dalhousie students seem to be labouring under the mistaken idea that to open one's mouth at a rugby game is absolutely indecent and lacking in all semblance of dignity. What a smug complacent, self-centered attitude to adopt! Ask any member of the team whether or not good cheering support makes any difference to them; ask them if they don't put that extra spark of vitality into their playing when they realize that every member of the college is cheering for them and depending on them? The team begs for student support; they need it to win!

The support given the cheerleaders at the last game was a disgrace to the student body. They are stationed at the bleachers for the benefit of the students. In their hands is placed the responsibility of working out a system for encouraging the members of the team both individually and collectively, but when students fail to cooperate in a true sportsmanlike manner, the result certainly leaves a bad taste in the mouths of visitors. This situation is not only deplorable but critical. If the students generally would forget who the cheerleaders are, and remember that they are there solely for the benefit of the team and the students themselves, the situation would probably right itself.

A REAL DAL CO-ED.

The Editor,
The Dalhousie Gazette.

Dear Sir:—

With reference to an item regarding the band which appeared in the columns of your remarkable journal last week. The band, as an organization for the production of music, is certainly worthy of the fullest student support. But if, as the Gazette says, the band is "trying to instill some of that rah rah spirit that is so lacking at Dal," it should be obliterated from the face of the earth. No organization could have a more unworthy object than that. Dalhousie students may lack something of that spirit of cooperation without which no large body can work effectively; but they do not need any rah-rah spirit. One of the best things about Dalhousie is that it is lacking in that peculiar atmos-here which is so noticeable in Yankee and Upper Canadian colleges. Thank God we are free from it! No greater blight could settle upon a university. Such a spirit is the very antithesis of everything for which this university was founded. When the evils of "rah-rah" are so plain to all thinking persons, why should we adopt the methods of our less fortunate contemporaries. May the halls and campus of this fair college never be blighted by such tommy-rot. I could say much more, but you wouldn't print it, therefore I'll stop.

Yours sincerely,

Perhaps an approximate itemized account might make things a little clearer.

	Hotel.	Gym.
Tickets	$3.00	$1.75
Room	5.00	....
Tips	.50	....
Pressing, etc.	1.50	1.50

Total $13.25 $6.50
Without Room, $8.25. Without Taxi, $3.50.

Is it clear "Dalhousie Girl"? Let us hope so for I am going to tell you something funny. Did you know that you personally told Egbert what you thought of him, and told him what you were going to say in your reply? Do be more careful! Here is something else. You know the fellow whom Art Cooke told to buy a hat in last week's Observer? Yes sure, who doesn't? Well, he was talking to Egbert the other day, and asked me what I thought of Egbert's letter. Well before, I could say anything he told me he was Egbert. Can you beat that; he told a lot of other people too, so you just tell the girls that, and I'll bet he won't get a bid to Delta Gamma. "Fools, certainly do walk where angels fear to tread." He had better be careful or he will have Omega after him. No! my mistake, for Omega cannot understand the chatter of the magpie nor the gossip of the jay. Too bad Omega, you should have been of The Romantic Revival, or even the Victorian Era, for you claim too much, when through your signature you identify yourself as a contemporary of Lyly, in the school of "Euphemism." Omega, your so styled euphemistic amamenisings have been wasted on the unambidexterical ones, for whom it was intended. Egbert mourns for you, on your brilliant letter, or rather aberrant and paraphrastic effort, but after all, Omega, was it not just a conglomeration of oblationary phrases?

Sincerely yours,
EGBERT.

SPORT BRIEFS

With Saturday's game against Caledonia bringing the Football season to a close the Basketball players will now start training in earnest.

With the following varsity players in school, McRae, Davidson, Fairstein, Handler, Anderson, Bauld, as well as the following possibilities, Ted and Doug Crease, Clark, Lorway, Richardson, Lloy, Dubilier and several boys from American colleges who will all make last year's Varsity step to hold their positions, things look excellent for the return of the City and Provincial Title to Dalhousie. They were here in 1930, why not this year?

How about the Dalhousie tennis club giving the fans the names of the winners of the college tournaments? If they are not finished what steps are going to be taken to complete them?

Don't forget the Pre-Christmas Wrestling Championships Thursday night in the Lower Gym at 7.30 p. m. All students invited.

The annual meeting between the Profs and the Students will take place Friday night when the Teachers and the Taught meet at Badminton.

The Sydney Post, referring to the kick for goal by Harold Davidson of that city which decided the game for Dalhousie against the Wanderers, recalls that it was this same Davidson who was responsible for the Junior Interscholastic Championship going to Sydney Academy in 1926. Playing Pictou Academy, Davidson booted over a drop-kick in the second period of the game for the only score of either team.

Delta Gamma Meets For Debate With Mt. St. Vincent Team

Delta Gamma held a very largely attended meeting at Shirreff Hall on Tuesday evening. During the short business meeting Dorothy Redmond, the president announced that a tea dance would be held on Friday, November 19, for the benefit of the Community Chest and urged everyone to attend. The chief feature of the evening, a debate with Mount Saint Vincent College then took place. The subject of the evening was "Resolved that the results justify the increase in higher education among women," with Dalhousie upholding the negative. The speakers were introduced by Betty March.

"Spreading The News" by Lady Gregory was then presented and was received with much appreciation. The players were Margaret Woolaver, Barbara Walker, Lois Hudson, Louise Manuel, Helena Bishop, Dora Baker, Moira Davidson, Moira MacLeod, Winifred Scott and Doris French.

Following this the judges of the debate—Mrs. Cahan, Mrs. Wilson Smith and Mrs. C. L. Bennett, gave their decision for the affirmative. The meeting broke up after the usual refreshments and dancing.

WRESTLERS NOTES

The Pre-Christmas Wrestling Championships will be held this coming Thursday, November 17th. These bouts are not to be exhibitions but are for the supremacy of the University.

Entries close Wednesday with Mr. Stirling, and contestants must weigh in from 11.30 a. m.-2.30 p. m., Thursday.

Scene: Gymnasium.
Time: 7.30, P. M. Thursday.

The Second Book Of Bunc

Chapter 4.

1. And there came one unto the man Bunc and said unto him, Get thee into the Kleenik in order that thou mayest be examined and he went.

2. And lo, when he came unto the place, behold he was divested of his raiment and an instrument lodged on his arm.

3. Then said the man of Science unto him, Bend thy back that I may thump thee and he did and was thumped. And the latter continued and said, cough and he coughed; and he said, cough again and he coughed again.

4. Then said the man of Science, unto the Chronicler Bunc, Enough, thou hast been examined, yea completely, and behold thou art well.

5. But the man Bunc was sore amazed and said unto himself, Lo, can this be true? Can this be the examination, yea the medical? And there came an answer unto his innermost thoughts and a voice said, It is true, for lo, hast thou not paid thy shekels?

6. And there came another and he cried, Behold I have here a certfic from a greater man of Science than thou art, and that one said I am well unto my health; why then should I tarry here?

7. But they said unto that one, Nay thou must. This is the better; and he laughed and there laughed many with him; yea, verily the men of Dal laughed within their tents.

8. Now in the Land of Dal there liveth a famous man and his fame is known unto the four corners of the Land, and behold he is the learned Seeyell of the tribe of Benet, but the inhabitants call him Bennie, which meaneth Son of the Flying Hair.

9. For when Arch, beloved of old by the men of Dal departed hence; behold his domain was given unto him of the Benet tribe, yea verily, the domain of Engleash, and he ruleth there unto this day.

10. And lo, this prince knoweth his magic too and maketh theems come out of the air and nothingness.

11. And they who are good are punished with a scarcity of theems, but they who are slothful and wicked are plagued with many and to them also who stamp unto the floor.

12. And the populace groaned under the burthen of the theems, with which they were plagued and muttered within themselves, would that Mylton had died in his cradle and Shakesbeer and his son Faxabout Shakesbeer had ne'er been conceived.

13. And the Chieftains of Gaz are a bardy people, yea verily.

14. Lo, there was Horis, who now is a Profess, and verily, he was a mighty leader of Gaz, many years ago.

15. And there also was Jennings of the tribe of Med, who later became Father of the Council of Studes.

16. Then came Bennar of Guss, and after him George of Dent and Kelly, the Inimitable.

17. And next in line was Arthur, surnamed the Joonyer who now controlleth the destinies of the armies of Dal and with him, Gordon the Wise, of the tribe of Cooper. And he liveth now away from his people.

18. And the next chieftain of Gaz was Teedee, who waged the Three Week Battle with the Council of Studes; and with him was Beel, who speaketh seldom, but speaketh well.

19. And now the chieftains are Spry, the Tall and Ed; and lo, they are men of Stud and live not in the Forrest, for lo, did not the Council say unto the people, Behold, the chieftains of Gaz shall no longer be chosen from those who dwell in the Forrest?

"Putting Barclay On The Map" Concluded

Mary Lou said a little tremulously, "Hello?" "Hello" answered Johnny, "How've you been? Hello, hello, Mary Lou?" The icicle answered, "I've been in the best of health, and you?" "Fine, I'm coming over to see you—O. K.? I've a grand idea, but I haven't time to tell you now. Be seeing you?" And he hung up. Mary Lou's knees shook for quite a while but she managed to pull herself together. Johnny's voice hadn't sounded exactly as if he were preparing to eat humble pie. He had actually sounded rather cocky. The icicle froze up again. When Mary Lou entered the reception room her worst fears were realized—Johnny was not on his hands and knees, neither was he standing with head bowed—he stood quite bold and fearless holding a tattered notebook in his hand, and on his face, Mary Lou could hardly believe it, on his face a grin! Johnny felt there was something wrong, "You didn't sound very friendly over the telephone Mary Lou anything the matter?" "Perhaps it was because your voice was so strange I didn't recognize it at first." "Liar! I've been rather busy the last few days, Mary Lou, I thought you understood that—basketball and a few other things, you knew I was going to be busy, I told you the last time I saw you. I—I—I—took it for granted you'd know." Mary Lou took the bull by the horns, "You take entirely too much for granted Mr. John R. Culbertson and I'm tired of listening to you talking from morning till night about nothing but putting Barclay on the map. I don't care if Barclay never gets on the map and who looks at maps anyway? I hate maps, I hate Barclay, I hate—" "You are hysterical, Mary Lou," said Johnny and put down the tattered notebook. "Besides me, Barclay, and the map, what specially seems to be the matter?" The icicle melted suddenly, "I don't know, Johnny." "You didn't forget about the dance to-night, did you Mary Lou? Remember I told you last time I saw you, remember Mary Lou?" "Yes I remember Johnny," and the blue eyes sparkled again with pleasure—and wisdom.

Keeper: You think you're sane, eh? Well, if we give you your liberty will you keep away from liquor and women? Asylum Inmate: I certainly will. Keeper: Then you stay in. You're still crazy.

Chicago Judge: So you murdered your whole family, eh? Thirty days! Prisoner: Don't be so hard on me, your honor. It was only a small family.
