

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

CAREY B. JOYNT, Assistant Professor of International Relations at Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa. A native of Hensall, Ont., he received his B.A. degree with honors in History from the University of Western Ontario in 1945, studied for two years at Osgoode Hall, and returned to Western Ontario for an M.A. in History. After three years of study on a fellowship at Clark University, he received his Ph.D. in History and International Relations and was appointed to the Faculty of Lehigh.

LAWRENCE WILLSON, of Goleta, is Assistant Professor of English, at Santa Barbara College, University of California. A native of New Hampshire, he attended Wesleyan and Yale and has been teaching, primarily in American Literature, since 1935, at these institutions, Colgate, and, since 1947 at Santa Barbara.

C. B. FERGUSSON, of Halifax, is Assistant Archivist on the staff of the Public Archives of Nova Scotia

DOUGLAS LOCHHEAD is University Librarian at Dalhousie.

WILLIAM F. KENNEDY is Associate Professor of Economics at the University of California, Santa Barbara College. He has worked as an economist for various electric companies and government agencies. Most of his writings, including a book, The Objective Rate Plan, have been on public utility economics, but in recent years his interest has been in the relations between the humanities and economics

ARTHUR L. SCOTT, of Urbana, Illinois, is a graduate (B.S. and M.A.) of Princeton and (Ph.D.) of the University of Michigan. He taught for two years at Alborz College, Teheran, Iran, and since 1947 has taught at the University of Illinois, specializing in Modern American Literature. He has published a number of articles on Mark Twain and is at present engaged in research for a book about that author.

C. R. FAY, Belfast, the author of a number of works on Economic History, is Reader Emeritus in Economic History, Cambridge, and from 1921 to 1930 was Professor of Economic History, University of Toronto.

LEONID IGNATIEFF is Associate Professor of Russian Studies at the University of Western Ontario. A native of Russia, Professor Ignatieff attended school in England and, in 1932, graduated in Arts from McGill University with honors in Economics. After teaching school in British Columbia, he taught Russian and Economics at the University of Western Ontario, undertook postgraduate work at the Universities of Columbia and Michigan in Russian History and Literature, and returned to Western in 1950 as Head of the Department of Russian Studies.

KENNETH M. HAMILTON, M.A., B.D., of Elmsdale, N. S., is a frequent contributor to The Dalhousie Review and other scholarly journals.

THOMAS SAUNDERS, of Winnipeg, has contributed both prose and verse to The Dalhousie Review and has published two volumes of poetry, "Scrub Oak" and "Horizontal World."