

somewhat diminished by the obscurity and carelessness of his style. However, our reading of Pope's early poetry is undoubtedly deepened and enriched by Aden's sensitive analyses, based as they are on an impressive knowledge of the politics of the period and a keen sensitivity to satire.

University of Ottawa

R.L. Hayley

CONTRIBUTORS

Y.S. Bains has contributed other articles to The Dalhousie Review on Halifax theatre.

Douglas Barbour, a regular reviewer of Canadian poetry, teaches at the University of Alberta.

Elizabeth Brewster, a poet and writer of fiction, teaches at the University of Saskatchewan.

Roger Hall teaches History at the University of Western Ontario.

James Harrison teaches English at University of Guelph.

Linda Hutcheon teaches English at McMaster University.

J.M. McEwen teaches History at Brock University.

Allison Mitcham teaches English at Université de Moncton.

Mary Elizabeth Smith teaches English at the University of New Brunswick, Saint John.

Rebecca Smith teaches English at the University of Prince Edward Island, Charlottetown.

J.A. Wainwright teaches English at Dalhousie University.

Terry Whalen teaches English at Saint Mary's University, Halifax.

Verse by:

Ron Charach, Toronto; Robert Cockburn, Fredericton; Audrey Conard, Oakville, Ontario; William Virgil Davis, Waco, Texas; Mary di Michele, Toronto; Charles Edward Eaton, Woodbury, Connecticut; James Harrison, Guelph; Ken Samberg, Bronx, New York.