

CONTRIBUTORS

Y.S. Bains from Providence, R.I., has made a study of the early theatre in Halifax.

R.P. Bilan teaches English at University College, University of Toronto.

Desmond H. Brown teaches History at the University of Alberta.

Joan Clark, a Maritimer now living in Calgary, writes poetry and fiction.

Robert Cockburn is a professor-poet at the University of New Brunswick.

Richard A. Davies teaches English at Acadia University.

D.J. Dooley teaches English at St. Michael's College, University of Toronto.

Josef Konvitz teaches History at Michigan State University.

Marjorie Nicolson, now retired, was for many years a distinguished teacher of English at Columbia University.

Patrick O'Flaherty teaches English at the Memorial University of Newfoundland.

Laurence Ricou teaches English at the University of Lethbridge.

W.K. Thomas, who has contributed to the Dalhousie Review for many years, teaches at Waterloo University.

P.B. Waite is at Dalhousie where he teaches and writes about Canadian History.

Verse from:

Gregory M. Cook, Wolfville Ridge, Nova Scotia; Harry Thurston, River Hebert, Nova Scotia; Kathy Tyler, Dartmouth, Nova Scotia; Patricia Monk, Halifax; Elizabeth Jones, Cambridge Station, Nova Scotia.