Cumulative Index to the SSAC Bulletin 1990-1994

The Society for the Study of Architecture’s Bulletin evolved from the Society’s Newsletter in 1980 to provide a means of exchanging current research on the role of the built environment in Canadian society. Over the years the Bulletin has provided a forum for those interested in architectural studies, both professional and amateur, to present their research to a national audience. The Bulletin’s longevity is a tribute to the enduring interest of Canadians in the historical and cultural issues relating to their buildings, streetscapes, cities, and countryside.

This index is divided into two components: an index to authors, and an index to subjects. With each entry in the author section will be found the name of the article, the date of publication (with volume and number in parentheses), the page numbers, and details about illustrations, bibliographies, etc.

The subject index uses categories adapted from the Avery Index to Architectural Periodicals. Each reference lists the author’s last name, the date of publication, and the page numbers. Readers may use this information to refer to the author index for a full citation.

This index provides a broad guide to the concepts, structures, places, and people discussed in the Bulletin. Short news items and announcements have generally not been indexed.

Index cumulatif pour le Bulletin de la SEAC (1990-1994)

La publication de la Société pour l’étude de l’architecture au Canada est passée des Nouvelles au Bulletin en 1980 afin de devenir un outil d’échange dans les recherches actuelles sur le rôle de l’environnement bâti dans la société canadienne. Au fil des ans, le Bulletin a permis à ceux qui s’intéressent aux études en architecture, qu’ils soient professionnels ou amateurs, de présenter leurs recherches à un public national. La longévité du Bulletin est un hommage à l’intérêt soutenu que portent les Canadiens aux questions historiques et culturelles qui touchent leurs bâtiments, leurs voies urbaines, leurs villes et leur campagne.

L’index se divise en deux parties, soit par auteur et par sujet. Dans la section par auteur, vous trouverez le nom de l’article, la date de publication (et, entre parenthèses, le numéro du volume et du magazine), les numéros de pages et des détails sur les illustrations, les bibliographies, etc.

L’index par sujet se sert de catégories adaptées de l’index Avery pour des périodiques en architecture. Chaque référence donne le nom de famille de l’auteur, la date de publication et les numéros de pages. Les lecteurs peuvent se servir de ces renseignements et ensuite se référer à l’index par auteur pour avoir une description complète.

L’index fournit un guide général des concepts, structures, endroits et personnes traités dans le Bulletin. La plupart des avis et articles d’information ne sont pas répertoriés.
