

Call for Papers

Environments: A Journal of Interdisciplinary Studies published by The Faculty of Environmental Studies, University of Waterloo is planning to bring out an issue in early 1985, broadly dealing with "histories" of Canadian planning and design of environments. The topics solicited in their Call for Papers range quite widely across the spectrum of biography, local movements, significantly influential events, and projects both designed and/or built.

In addition to Papers they would welcome Research-in-Progress Notes. Essays and research papers not exceeding 6,000 words will be considered for publication. Research-in-Progress notes should be of approximately 200 words in length. Submissions may be in English or French. Persons intending to submit manuscripts should obtain from the guest editor the relevant guidelines issued by the Editorial Board of ENVIRONMENTS.

Address enquiries, outlines and manuscripts to the Guest Editor:
