

Pyramus note - Rocket - an iron tube about a foot long and an inch in D. - sometimes ten or 12 feet long - the to the distance of upwards of 1000 yards - some have a chimney and burst like a shell. Others called ground rockets a suspension motion, and on striking the ground rise again and burn along till their force be spent. The rockets make a great noise and exceedingly annoy the native cavalry in India who move in ^{deep} great bodies; but are easily avoided or seldom take effect against our troops, who are formed in lines of great extent, and no great depth
- see also Fouquet in some Military Designs.
