STUDENTS! Be Careful of Your Eyesight.

You surely do not wish to begin your life's work handicapped by poor eyesight. If your eyes ache or cause you any inconvenience when you are reading or studying, there is a cause for it. Even though it should be slight, better have me examine your eyes, and if necessary, supply glasses. Scientifically fitted glasses correct defective vision, and make reading a comfort.

I devote my whole time to optical work and have the latest appliances to aid me in it and the only complete lense grinding plant in the Maritime Provinces.

EDITORIALS

IN this number we have to chronicle another important event in the history of Dalhousie. Dr. Forrest has handed in his resignation of the presidency of the University. With his retirement ends the professional career of one of the foremost educators of our country. For nearly thirty years Dr. Forrest has managed the affairs of Dalhousie, and by his efforts has put her where she is to-day; in the forefront of Canadian Universities. It will be hard for us to think of Dalhousie without this fine old man, whom so many generations of Dalhousians have learned to love and revere. It will be no easy matter to fill his place as president of the University, but it will be harder to fill the place which he holds in the hearts and affections of both graduates and undergraduates.

IN our December issue, we called attention to the urgent need of a fully-equipped Y. M. C. A. building. At that time there was needed not only the where-with-all to build the building, but the place to locate it. Now that the purchase of Studley has removed the latter objection, this problem must force itself on our attention again with redoubled effect.

Of late the question of a Y. M. C. A. Secretary for Dalhousie has been much in vogue, and has received much comment favorable and adverse.

We ourselves believe that the first step towards the realization of our Y. M. C. A. building will be a full paid Y. M. C. A. Secretary for Dalhousie. We believe that we have need and opportunity for such a Secretary, and that he is wanted by the students; and we feel sure that the present effort to obtain one will meet with success.

The GAZETTE will gladly welcome correspondence on this important matter from our graduates, many of whom we know have strong feeling on this matter.

Tribute to President Forrest.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE DALHOUSIE GAZETTE:

GENTLEMEN,—In response to your request that I should write you a short article on the occasion of the announcement by Dr. Forrest that he has given notice to the Board of Governors of his desire to resign at the end of the present session, I may say that this is, in my judgment, not the time, nor am I the person, to undertake to estimate his worth.

I may, however, send a few lines to express my appreciation of Dr. Forrest's long service, and my hope that Dalhousie may soon secure a man to take the place of the retiring President.

From my boyhood days I have known Dr. Forrest, and now for some years with intimacy. Dalhousie has been so long presided over by Dr. Forrest that he seemed to have become an essential part of it; and if loyalty to the institution and profound belief in its work and its future are necessary to one who is to lead it, Dr. Forrest was assuredly well qualified in these respects to fulfill his function. He was also devoted to his city and his province, and thereby was all the more fitted to stand at the head of Dalhousie.

Since Dr. Forrest took charge the College has grown from a very small provincial institution into a university, with an honorable and far-reaching reputation. Its students have entered the professions, and are found to be doing well, not only in Nova Scotia, but in all the other provinces of the Dominion, and a number have positions of prominence beyond our borders. To this growth of the College, and to the moulding of this line of students, Dr. Forrest has contributed largely, along with a staff of distinguished colleagues. Such a life of influence must be now a source of great satisfaction, and will continue to brighten with its memories the years which may still be granted him.

Dr. Forrest is one of the kindest of men. I have seen him again and again show the warmest sympathy to those in distress, and he always does the generous thing. Few men can take a defeat in a finer spirit, or treat their opponents with more chivalry after the struggle is over.

The President of Dalhousie has no easy position to fill, and Dr. Forrest may be congratulated on having the opportunity, after so many years of arduous work, of withdrawing to less exacting duties, which we may be sure he will find to occupy his abundant energy. We all wish Mrs. Forrest and himself many years of usefulness and of quiet enjoyment as the reward of their kind and honorable career in Dalhousie.

Yours, etc.,

R. A. FALCONER.

Sermo Vanus.

THE other day as I was resting after a long wrestle with an ode of Pindar, my friend Jenkyns drifted in to cool his brow and brain, after rough contact with conflicting evidence on Cambrian formations or something equally wicked. We had hardly got started at picking things in general to pieces in the usual fashion of weary and more or less irritated men, when Brown introduced himself, fresh from the delights of Lake Whitney's broad ice field. Jenkyns and myself were angry at Brown for his happy and healthful appearance, and told him that his style of amusement was well enough for the high school and might be tolerated in an undergraduate; in a graduate student it was reprehensible. It argued a preoccupation with the things of sense unworthy of a man of such supposed intellectual leaning. It was a pleasure fit only for the rude multitude. Whereupon Brown with great good humour said:

"Your remarks require no Sherlock Holmes to interpret. It would hardly do to say sour grapes to you, because you have not realized that there are grapes of any kind in the case. You are in chains, bound in a cave like these men in the Republic."

Jenkyns interrupted him to beg him for heaven's sake not to grow philosophical. Philosophy might be a study unfit for lunatics, but surely lunatics only were properly qualified to study philosophy. Brown continued:

"The question of the definition of pleasure leads naturally to a theory of the universe. So do all other questions whatsoever. Now, pleasure is relative to the individual. It pleases you to sit here and mope. You become ill-tempered and captious. It pleases me to skate, whereupon I grow good-natured and healthy. You should not rail at my pleasure, since I do not deride your pain. Each is probably useless, save to ourselves. But I enjoy and you suffer."

As I thought this argument might open out into fields of philology, I wished Brown to continue. Jenkyns was disgusted, but I passed him the one apple upon the premises, whereupon he was content. So I asked Brown, "Are you familiar with Locke's 'Theory of Languages?'" I am not familiar with it myself, but I knew that Brown was not familiar with it either, and I am always willing to appear learned. Brown thanked heaven that he had never opened the covers of Locke, and continued: "It is necessary to live somewhat as another man lives in order to understand his vocabulary. Words connote ideas and impressions that we draw from experience. Our abstract ideas are built up from our concrete impressions. Now as every man has a peculiar lot of impressions, his vocabulary means to him something different from what it means to every other man."

Jenkyns had finished his apple, and was peacefully whittling the chair. I passed him Brown's cigarettes, and asked Brown to continue, and give some concrete examples: "Take, for instance, the word enthusiasm," said he, "you will find that people in their interpretation of it fall into two groups, which we may classify roughly as the intellectual and the emotional. I do not mean to imply that the intellectual have not emotion, or that the emotional are necessarily inferior in intellect. One refers to a man as 'enthusiastic' who shouts himself hoarse at a political gathering, or bursts into fervent ejaculations at a temperance meeting or prayer meeting. The other calls such a one not enthusiastic, but a fanatic, and refers to his enthusiast as the man who chooses a purpose, good or evil, and follows it steadily to the end in the face of struggle, danger, and frequent defeat, who refuses to acknowledge himself beaten, pursues his course without haste and without pause, making no noise, and asking for no reward. Which is right? It all depends on your idea of the theos. Your theory of the universe again."

Now, I am not at all interested in theories of the universe, and it is necessary that I should be able to veil my ignorance upon such subjects as the semantic value of words. So I sidetracked Brown's theology, and told him that he had interested me very much, and I hoped he would choose another good example. "Could you discuss the term 'belief'?" I said. "I have sometimes thought that it was loosely used." "I confess," said Brown, "that it has seemed to me so, also. One may say that he believes his shoe is too tight; another that he believes in dreams. Smith believes that it will storm to-morrow; Jones that Oboid tobacco is superior to Old Chum. It is obvious that the ground for each affirmation is a generalization from experience, an interpretation of sensation, and that each may be, from one standpoint, wrong, from another right."

Whereupon Jenkyns said that he thought there could be no question of belief in the matter of a tight shoe. It was an ultimate fact. However, he was occupied with Brown's cigarettes, and not strenuous in opposition. "Perhaps," said Brown, "that comes as near ultimate fact as we can get in this world, though even here the term is relative to the individual. The young lady, for instance, who wants to appear to possess a dainty foot becomes unconscious of a degree of shoe torture that would paralyze an athlete. In the case of dreams, it is obvious that a man must have taken his "belief" from some one else, or from a supposed correspondence between the series of events in the dream world and the real world. Belief in the probability of a storm is due to a synthesis of sensations, and has its basis in objective fact, so-called. Belief in the superiority of one brand of tobacco over another is purely subjective, and so it goes."

Jenkyns asked sarcastically if Brown would object to discussing Christian Science, Pragmatism, Functions of a Complex Variable, the Homeric Digamma, or something similar, and leaving hard problems alone. However, he soon lighted another cigarette, and Brown, who is a very good-natured man, and is as pleased at the sound of his own voice as any of us, resumed: "I asked a freshman the other day what he was shouting for. He said he had a sore throat, but had to show college spirit. I saw an unfair play at football on the part of a usually upright fellow. How did he excuse it to me? College spirit. Why did the Southern professor you were reading of work all his life at his small college, for small pay, when he could be drawing an adequate salary elsewhere? College spirit. Problem—find the connecting link.”

Jenkyns, who, like Brown, is a Canadian from a small college, now said. “I remember when I was a Freshman, I fell in with a Sophomore who said that our college had the best course in America. I remember thinking it strange, as I had a general idea that America was a large region, and contained other places besides our province. I of course grew to think more of my college than of any other, but haven't got over the idea that my Sophomore friend had made the mistake of generalizing without sufficient data. I suppose college spirit caused him to do that.”

Brown was weary of defining terms, and turned to another topic: “you will observe in colleges as in men, that their pretensions are usually in inverse ratio to their worth. When you examine the publications of small sectarian institutions in various parts of the continent, you will be struck by the splendid educational advantages that are unknown to the general public. Each such institution is superior to all the others. When you turn to really worthy institutions, you hear no noise. With them it may be a case of “securus indicat orbis terrarum.” But it is only that spirit of modest self-criticism with honest, hard work that makes any institution worth while. I asked a man once why he so respected his Alma Mater. ‘There isn't any cant there,’ he said.”

“Don't you think,” said Jenkyns, “that you are pretty conservative in your part of the world? I admit that you do well what you do, but why don't you shove your classical lumber over, and do something worth while?”

I thought there might be trouble coming, and listened very earnestly, for I am always very anxious to learn. I have been a student of Classics and Philosophy, and such stuff, and have never in my life done anything useful. I thought Brown might be able to say something that would justify my existence, so I kept silent.

“I see,” said Brown, “that you will admit that we have done our Classics very well?” “Oh, yes,” said Jenkyns, “for the new world. But that sort of stuff is done properly only in Germany and England.” “Do you think,” said Brown, “that we should neglect it here, because we don't do it well? It seems to me that if we are doing our duty, we will do it better. The problem is, whether we want our Universities turned into trade schools. The argument that begins by demolishing the Classics, ends by demolishing all serious study of everything but how to get rich. As Shorey said recently, all higher study of literature and philosophy, without preliminary training in the Classics, is a sorry jest. I suppose you will not quarrel with the idea that by means of education the child aims to assimilate the culture of the race. Now, Greece and Rome are the starting points of our civilization, and it is quite impossible to gain a correct apprehension of civilization in the Aryan world without some grounding in Greek and Roman studies.”

Jenkyns said he thought not so, but Brown continued: “It is not because those things are old, but because all modern culture grows from them that they are the fundamentals of a liberal education. Consider a man trained in Plato going over to Christian Science. What might we not have been spared if the authors of bogus religions and fake theories generally had been given a sound classical training. For the average student the classics furnish an intellectual and moral balance wheel. He learns from them the important art of omission.”

I thought Jenkyns ought to have a chance, so I asked him if he had ever studied any language. “Yes,” he said, “I learned Latin very well at school, and find it of use in scientific work.”

Brown was off again on a subject that I am supposed to know about, so I listened.

“Every child grows up with a set of ready-made concepts bonded to him. These are the words of his native language. By their aid he thinks and builds his knowledge. When he starts a new language he breaks up all his old material and builds it over into another form. It is a most exhilarating experience.”

It is hard to say how long Brown might have gone on talking, or what Jenkyns would have said in reply, but just then the clock struck six. I would willingly have sat longer, for I was interested in the discussion, but Jenkyns remembered that it was the night for music at dinner, and was anxious not to miss it. So we all started off in good spirits, and pleased with ourselves. As we walked toward the Commons I thought that Jenkyns had good cause to be happy, for he had devoured my apple and Brown's cigarettes; Brown, because he had been given a chance to talk a great deal; and I, since I had earned a reputation for hospitality at very little expense.

To Shelley.

What other voice in all the Muses' choir—
Ranging from lullaby to sound of thunder—
Could match the strains of thy melodious lyre,
When hearts were thrilled, and eyes were filled with wonder?

With passion did'st thou drink to Liberty,
And fling a challenge to each rude oppressor!
Ah! had'st thou lived, the truth had found in thee
An advocate; the wronged, a great redresser.

But while too early fell thy golden head,
And dark Fate ended all thy high endeavor;
Since round Affection's lamp thy words are read,
Whate'er betide, thou shall abide forever.

Fire On the 13th of February, 1905, the full-rigged ship
At Sea. "Largo Law," of Glasgow, was loading at Santa Rosa, Independencia Bay, one of the guano islands of Peru. My father was in command of the "Largo Law," and I was on board at the time.

A more barren and unattractive place than Santa Rosa can not well be imagined. There was but one shack on the island which in any way approached a house, and even this was a very rude structure. The other huts were composed of sacks and bagging, supported by rough frame-work.

A sloop came once a week from a place called Pisco, and brought mails and provisions, and her arrival was the most exciting event of the week.

A gale had been raging all day, and towards evening the wind increased in violence, and it blew very hard all night.

At 11.30, p. m., I was awakened by hearing the watchman excitedly calling my father. Then I heard the alarming cry, "Fire in the fore hold, sir."

I heard my father hurry out on deck, but instead of getting up I turned sleepily over, reflected that "of course it was a false alarm," and prepared to go asleep again.

My own indifference is something which I could never explain or understand, but I had had several exciting adventures, and perhaps on this account was not easily disturbed.

In a few moments I heard sounds of hurrying feet on the deck over my head, and began to think that it might not be a false alarm after all. I decided to get up and investigate the matter, and make sure for myself. I was none too soon, for just as I was almost ready to go out on deck, my room and the whole cabin became so filled with smoke that I had to make haste to get out, and I experienced some difficulty in groping my way to the chart-room steps.

When I gained the deck, I found all was excitement and confusion. The men were employed in carrying water and trying to extinguish the fire, which had already made considerable headway. While this was going on, it became known that a fire had also been started in the main hold, and hope of saving the ship was now doubtful. The gale was still raging, and this made matters worse, for the high wind fanned the flames and aided the fire. Men from the island now came to our assistance, but even with their help, the fire could not be extinguished, the ship could not be saved.

At last, all hope of being able to extinguish the fire was abandoned, and we were forced to leave her. As we came down the gangway, the ship's sides were hot, and we expected the ladder to fall any minute. The wind and waves were so high that we had a great deal of trouble in landing, and had to spring onto the rudely-constructed pier as the boat rose upon the wave, and gain a safe place before she came up again. There were no lives lost, and we all safely arrived on shore. We had a good many animals, including sheep, (for the meat to be bought on shore was not to be trusted,) and they were all saved.

The ship burnt all night, and the next day the masts fell. I stood on the shore and sadly watched them falling, the flames leaping high in the air, and the smoke curling in thick clouds. So thoroughly did the fire do its work of destruction, that it was three days before the ship was cool, and what remained of her was nothing but a blackened hull.

We remained on the island for five days, and had to put up with a great many inconveniences. One of the minor troubles was the number of flies, and they were certainly the most friendly flies with which I ever had any dealings, and while we were having our meals, a boy stood over us and fanned the flies away.

On the evening of the fifth day, the Peruvian transport "Chalaco" came to take us away, and we gladly left the Island of "Santa Rosa." While on board the "Chalaco," we were treated most hospitably by the captain and officers, who were very kind to us and did all in their power to make us comfortable. We went to Pisco, where we remained for three weeks, while the cause of the fire was being investigated. There was no doubt but that the ship had been fired: the men complained about working the cargo, and evidently considered this a good way out of the difficulty; the trouble however, lay in convicting the guilty ones. Three men were convicted on circumstantial evidence, and imprisoned for a lengthy period, I forget just how long. The laws out there are very slack, and it is doubtful if they would be forced to serve their full term of imprisonment.

When the trial was over we were taken up to Callao, and then went to Lima, where we remained for nearly two months, and then sailed for Liverpool.

The good ship, or I should say, the hulk of the good ship, which had made many fast passages, and been our home for six years, was sold for a coal hulk, and is probably in Callao harbor to-day.

Although this happened nearly six years ago, I have the whole scene before my mind, and can recall every detail of it, and I hope I shall never experience another fire. While a fire for some has a certain fascination, and a great many people will hasten to see one, I, on the other hand, will make all speed to get far away from one, and the fire-bell is a very doleful sound to me.

Chants of a Chickadee.

This is the strain of the student swain as he sits at his desk alone,
On the Sabbath night with his books in sight, for which he must atone;
And the night is fine and the girls divine, but the halcyon days have flown.

I.

When you're feeling kind of tired of the study of the law,
And there's nothing else to do but grin and grind,
It's a heap of satisfaction just to give your pipe a draw,
And to think about the girls you left behind.
True, you didn't like the parting when you tore yourself away,
And perhaps to think you've left them makes you blue,
But you'll find a joy in thinking that some bright and cheery day,
They'll be waiting with a greeting there for you.

II.

There's a kind of girl that's just all there ; the world holds but a few,
 She's dark or fair, well done or rare, and it matters not to you.
 You'll find her by a lucky star, Gimmis' fairy tales will say.
 Pray little star, tell where you are, but echo answers "nay."

III.

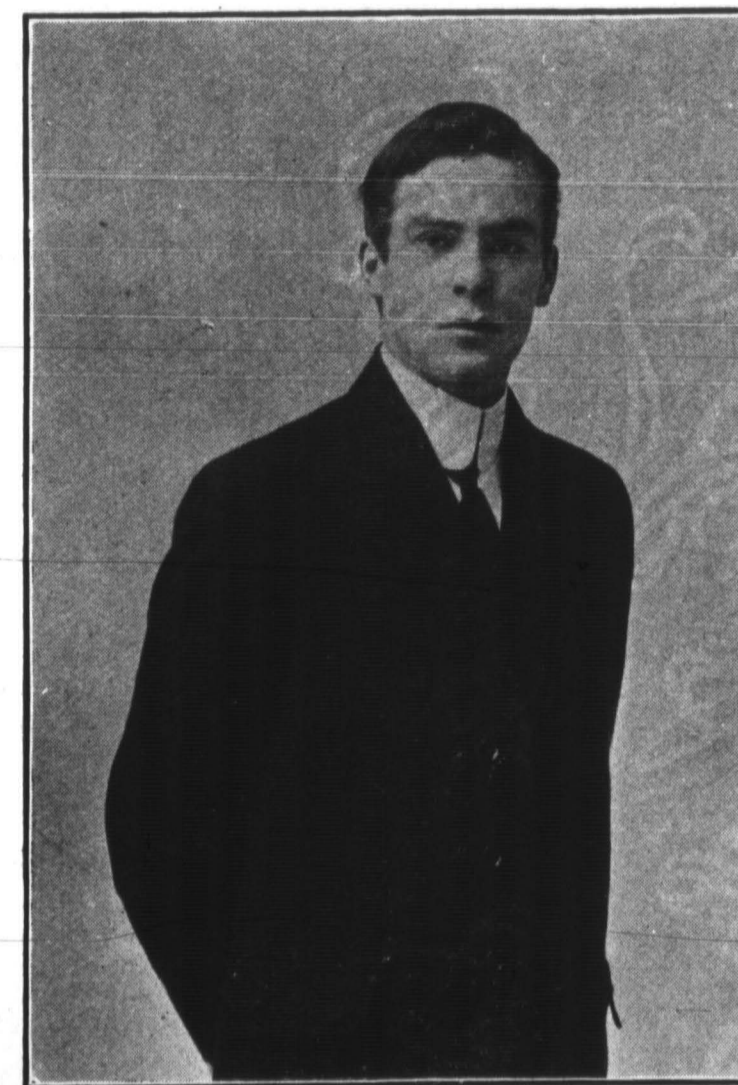

Tired and cold and I'm sleepy. I guess I will crawl into bed,
 I'll finish the Conflicts to-morrow when the night's rest has cleared out my head.
 It's your turn to put out the light "Mac;" to-morrow night I'll do the same.
 I'll be glad when we get through the Law School and into the genuine game,
 Then, "pard," we can hit to the Westward, to look for the scene of a fight,
 And, armed with the Criminal Statutes, make equity, money
 and right.

B. W. R., LAW, '11.

Winner of Prize Competition,

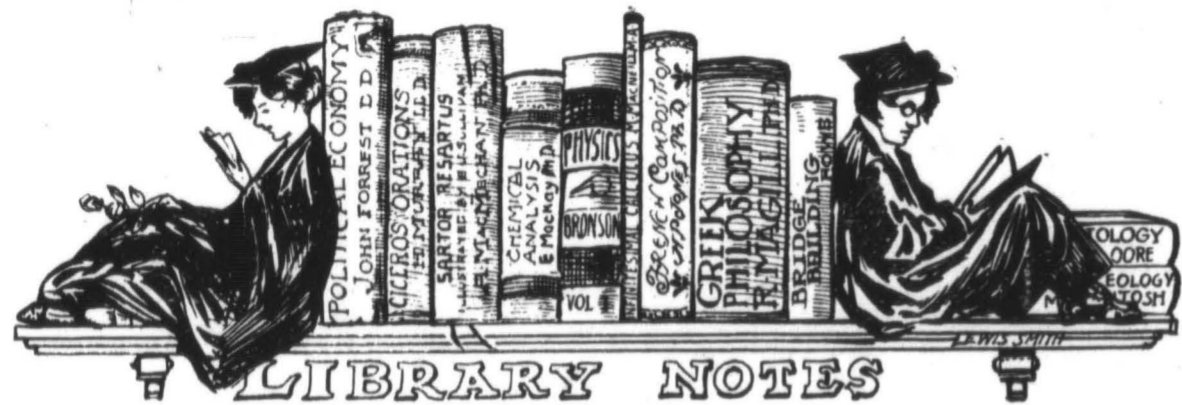

We are pleased to announce that the prize offered by the GAZETTE for the best prose contribution has been awarded to Mr. Gerald W. Grant on the merits of his article on "Student Life in Heidelberg," published in the November number of the GAZETTE.

GERALD W. GRANT.

Mr. Grant is a Halifax boy, and a member of the Arts '12 Class. He has travelled extensively, and before coming to Dalhousie spent two years in Germany. He visited some of the noted universities of that country, especially Heidelberg, and became thoroughly acquainted with their student life and customs. His description of the duelling contests which he witnessed at Heidelberg is very vivid, and was greatly appreciated by our readers. His many friends congratulate Mr. Grant on his success, and hope to have the pleasure of reading more of his interesting stories in the future.

IO PEAN.—Let us follow the example, or at least the suggestion, of the Incomparable Jane (known more commonly as Mrs. Carlyle), on the completion of her husband's "French Revolution."—"Sing the 'Te Deum' and get drunk." The impossible has come to pass! The thing that couldn't has occurred. The Governors have bought "Studley!" The question of the site is settled for ever and ever. Let us ring the bells, and fire the guns, and hoist the flags! "This marks an epoch!" And according to the statesmanlike programme outlined by our splendid Chairman of the Board of Governors, in the last GAZETTE, the second building to be erected will be the Macdonald Memorial Library. Three cheers! Three times three! Hip, hip, hip!!! And a tiger! And three more for the Chairman! Hip, hip!!! hip!!! And three more for the men who put their hands in their pockets and drew the cheques, and effected the transfer, while our worthy Council was debating whether or not they could let us have a rickle of bricks and a back yard for twice their market value. "And now we shan't be long," as Shakespeare says. Another year will see us where we should have been long ago. Advance Dalhousie!

ACTIVITY.—The purchase of "Studley" was barely announced when the energetic committee of the Macdonald Memorial, under the able direction of Our Own Chemist, got to work. It is an historical fact that the news of the purchase came on Thursday; at one o'clock we were congratulating one another in the corridors, and on the following Saturday a meeting of the Committee was called to consider ways and means of completing this fund.

SICK LEAVE.—Miss Gray has most unfortunately been invalided for several weeks. She has been greatly missed in the Library, where conscientious attention to her duties have been highly valued. At the first, her place was taken by various students, who kindly offered to keep the library open, and by the Librarian. But the regular work of cataloguing and arranging the accessions had to be suspended. Now Miss Muriel Kinnear is carrying on the Assistant Librarian's duties most acceptably. Miss Gray has recovered, but will not return to the Library for some time.

DALHOUSIE CORNER.—The latest accession to this department is Mr. J. T. Murray's two volumes, "English Dramatic Companies," which he has presented to the College through his father, Captain David Murray, of Truro. Copies of the publications, great or small, of Dalhousians are always most welcome.

ANOTHER GIFT.—After being laid aside for several months, several valuable works have been at last credited to the proper donor, Mr. Walter Crowe. While visiting the Library recently, he went through the catalogue to find some books he had given. No such names appeared in the catalogue, but on consulting the proper authority, he found the missing volumes. They were in safe-keeping; but, as there was no hint of their provenance, they had not been entered. This matter was at once attended to. The books are Justin Winson's "History of America," V. Parson's "Life of Pepperell," and "On the Polar Star," by the Duke of Abruzzi, two sumptuous volumes, giving an account of his Antarctic expedition.

STILL ANOTHER.—Among other works, Dr. Eliza Ritchie has given us a handsome twelve volume edition of Gibbon (London, 1807), with plates and maps. It is decorated with the book plate of the Rev. Edmund Maturin.

MENTION.—Though it has nothing to do with the Library, it should be noted that Professors Roy Mackenzie and H. T. Archibald read papers at a recent meeting of the Modern Language Association, and that Miss A. C. Giffen had an excellent article in the February "Canadian," and a poem in the February "University Magazine."

GOOD MAN.—A graduate borrowed some books a year ago and left a deposit. When he returned the books, he told the Librarian to turn the deposit over to the Macdonald Memorial Library. Si sic semper!

AMONG THE BOOKS.—The Church and Men, by the Rev. Dr. W. H. Smith, the Presbyterian Minister at Fredericton, N. B., published by the Broadway Publishing Co., of New York, ought to prove one of the most useful books of the year. It represents a course of lectures delivered by Dr. Smith, at "Pine Hill" College, Halifax. The whole presentation of the subject is scholarly, reasonable and most practicable. We have no hesitation in strongly recommending these lectures to the clergy and divinity students of the Church. We know no book, which so concisely presents the whole subject, as the one before us.

The lecturer divides his matter thus:

- I. Is the Church losing her hold on men, and why?
- II. Organization outside the Church.
- III. The attitude of the clergy to organizations outside the Church.
- IV. What the Church can do for men.
- V. Meetings for men.
- VI. Jesus as a man among men; The value of personality.

The Servers Handbook, by the Rev. Percy Dreamer, published by Henry Frowde, at 1s. net, adds another to "The Parsons Handbook Series," edited by the writer. This seems to be a save guide for those called to wait upon the clergy in our more "advanced" parishes.

VERSE.—The following versicles, which no author has avowed, were found about the College, and seem to contain references to a recent series of negotiations:

THE COUNCIL AND THE COLLEGE.

Of all the farces I have seen
Or e'er came to my knowledge,
There's none to beat the comedy
Of the Council and the College.

The Council ups and says, says they,
"You offer us a price
For this here Poor-House-City-Home,
You'll find it cheap and nice."

The Governors considered well,
And took advice of Roper;
They looked the Poor House inside-out,
As was both fit and proper.

"Now, fifty thousand dollars fair
For this Poor House we'll give,
It is the kind of place in which
Professors ought to live.

'Twill cost us fifty thousand more
To make it fit to live in,
But don't you mind, if you're inclined,
That is the price we're givin'."

The Council, they debated sore,
And then they up and voted
To take the money offered them,
With one exception noted.

This was the valiant alderman,
Whose name was Mr. H - bley,
He moved to think it all over again,
When everything looked lubbly.

Then Big Chief Bl - gh got in his work,
 And Alfred, named the Great.
 They did some things we do not know,
 The result below I state.

This noble Council now declares,—
 "We do not care to sell."
 If I was Dalhousie's Governors,
 I'd tell 'em to go to—Rockhead.

Alumni Notes.

APPRECIATION.—At a recent meeting of the Executive, the following resolution was adopted: "We, the Executive of the Alumni of Dalhousie University, do hereby express our gratification at the action of the Governors in purchasing, as a site for future University buildings, the Studley property, and authorize our Secretary to advise the Governors of our appreciation of their action and of our readiness to co-operate, as far as we are able, in any forward movement this purchase may involve."

CO-OPERATION.—The task of preparing a complete list of the Alumni still goes on. It is hoped we can obtain the actual address at the present time of every Alumnus, and avoid an annual contribution of circulars and mail to the dead letter office. This is no easy matter, since some are continually changing. Perhaps it is too much to ask for notice of a permanent change of address, yet we are glad to say that some have given it without the asking.

Our Alumni are surprisingly numerous. The list of graduates published from time to time fails to give any conception of the number. Many of our men have completed their course elsewhere, or have been unable, for financial or other reasons, to complete it at all. Yet they are even more loyal Dalhousians than our graduates, as a glance over the correspondence will show. Will not this large body work together, for individual effort is useless.

"MANY MICKLE MAKE A MUCKLE."—Many of our Alumni want to give a large sum, and feeling unable to do so, they unfortunately give nothing at all. Letter after letter contains an apology for the smallness of its really generous contents. But if each Alumnus would only give regularly his annual fee of two dollars, how soon it would add up. And can you not spare that to help Dalhousie, especially Dalhousie to-day?

ANNUAL DINNER.—The annual dinner of the New England Alumni will be held in Boston on the evening of March 10th. It is likely that a representative of the University will be present, and it is expected that a great many of our Alumni who live in and about Massachusetts will be there. Since the announcement of the new site, there has been a noticeable increase of interest among the outside Alumni, which will likely make itself strongly felt in the number of those who will attend this dinner.

The Alumni at Ottawa are also working in the same line, and it is probable that the University representative who goes to Boston will also visit them.

Personal Notes.

[From here and there, but chiefly from the correspondence of the Secretary of the Alumni Society.]

As is well known, there was a time in the 50's when Dalhousie existed in reality, though not in name. The students who attended her then really won degrees, but there was no power to confer them. One of these is known to each and every Alumnus of Dalhousie. His name and that of Dalhousie are inseparable, and we heartily wish that Dr. John Forrest, ex-President of Dalhousie, may be long spared to continue his life of usefulness.

It is an open secret that Mr. Arthur C. Harlow was offered, for the rest of the session, the chair of Chemistry in Mount Allison University, lately vacated by the talented Dr. Andrews.

Mr. Harlow preferred to remain in his present position of Principal of the Morris Street School, Halifax.

Dr. Edward Meyer, '93, writes from Somerville, Mass.: "I am very much pleased to hear that the college authorities have purchased the Studley property. It is an ideal location for Dalhousie, and I sincerely hope that the Alumni will help."

There are no better Dalhousians than the Engineers. Thoroughly decent fellows, they are already making good, although only graduated a few years.

Mr. S. W. Crowell, '08, is doing successful work at Graham, Ont.

Jeff. Gaherty is in the employ of the Western Canada Power Company, Limited, British Columbia.

C. W. MacAloney is at Missanaline, Ontario.

Graduation Number of the Gazette.

The last number of the GAZETTE for this session will eclipse all former numbers that have appeared in the long history of our College paper. Last month a short description of it was given, but the only way to learn all about it is to get one. Then, perhaps some of your friends would like one. We wish to have enough for everyone, but that means you must order yours early, and don't forget to send enough to pay for all you order.

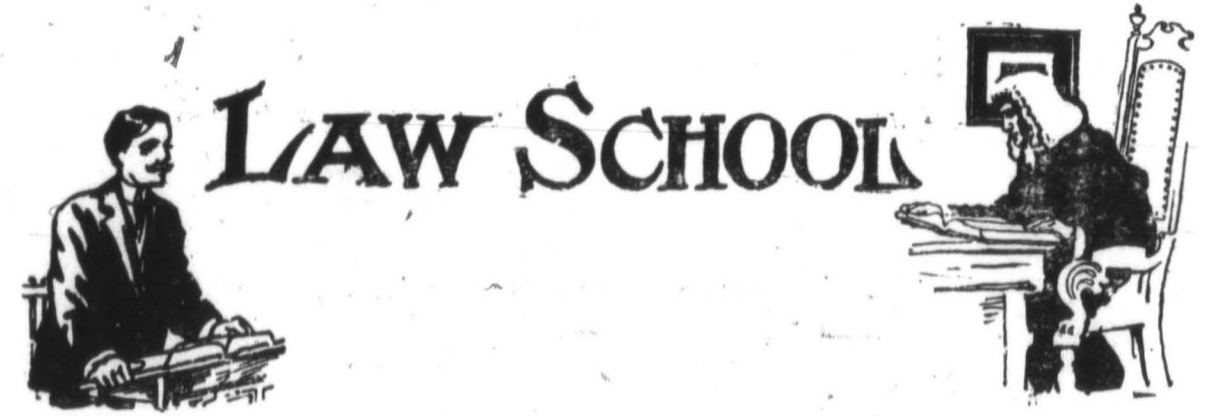

Extra copies will be sold for fifty cents each, or two dollars will procure five. Send all orders to the Business Manager before April 20th. You will not be disappointed.

"The Freshmen."

See the verdant freshmen standing
In the hallway, by the landing;
See them shake and see them shiver
See them tremble, see them quiver,
Waiting for the registration,
Which to them means condemnation.
See them clinging to their pocket,
Wishing they could only lock it,
For it's there they keep their money;
Oh it's very, very funny.
Watch them glance at one another,
Longing for their home and mother;
Caring not for any knowledge,
That a chap might get at college;
Only thinking, they would rather
Be at home and helping father.
Hear the older students laughing,
Hear them roaring, hear them chaffing,
Hear them growling, hear them snarling,
At poor mother's baby darling.
How they dread the opening lecture,
No one living can conjecture.
How they honor each professor!
It would turn a saint transgressor.
Soon, by scrimming and by fagging,
And by other means of scragging,
They discover, life at college
Isn't merely gaining knowledge.
They become a bit mendacious,
And amazingly loquacious,
Learn to swear in French and German,
Latin, Greek, as they determine;
Play at Bridge and Pokeritis,
Take a drink and want to fight us;
Get a girl and take her walking,
Set the gossips all a-talking;
Write their parents (crafty scholars!)
"I need books, so send some dollars."
And when'er they get finances,
Spend the cash on cards and dances;

Free from this contamination
 Write an odd examination,
 Sometimes passing, sometimes failing,
 Never, never, never ailing.
 Then they hurry home to mother,
 Father, sister, aunt and brother,
 And are smothered up with praises
 For misquoting Hebrew phrases.
 Thus, by bluff and fabrication
 They enjoy their long vacation.

O. B. J., '11.

The annual meeting of the Law Students' Society was held in the Moot Court Room on Thursday, February 9, at 12 o'clock, President Burns in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary (Mr. Deane) and approved.

Mr. Thomas, as Chairman of the Convocation Committee, reported that arrangements were being made to secure a prominent barrister from Toronto as speaker of the evening, and that Convocation would probably be held in the Hall of the School for the Blind.

Mr. C. C. McKay gave the report of the Lecture Committee. Mr. McKay said that the committee had been able to secure the services of Mr. Justice Graham for a course of lectures on Insurance, and Dean Walton for his lecture on "The Rebellion of 1837."

It was moved by Mr. Martell, seconded, and passed, that a vote of thanks be tendered Mr. Justice Graham for his lectures on Insurance.

It was moved by Mr. Ralston, seconded, and passed, that a vote of thanks be tendered Mr. Hector McInnes, K. C., for his co-operation in securing the lecture of Dean Walton.

Mr. R. S. Deane was unanimously elected President, and Mr. Long, Secretary for the coming year.

The following were appointed for the Lecture Committee: Messrs. Rice, Martell, Dysart, Vair and Christie.

Mr. Layton and Mr. Roper were appointed GAZETTE Editors.

Mr. Dysart was appointed Speaker of Mock Parliament, and Mr. Martell Premier.

At the conclusion of the meeting a very hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Burns, the retiring President, for the efficient manner in which he had filled the office.

College Notes.

Y. M. C. A.—January 28th.—The subject at the first "Union" meeting for the year was "Faith." The speakers were Miss Mary Davidson and Mr. H. S. Davis, B. A. Miss Davidson's paper shewed careful preparation, and was well worth hearing. Mr. Davis spoke in an interesting way, and aroused many new trains of thought in the minds of his audience. Mr. J. S. Smiley M. A., presided at the meeting.

January 29th.—The Sunday afternoon meeting was addressed by Principal McKinnon, of Pine Hill College. His subject was, "Is Unbelief Reasonable." It is needless to say that Dr. McKinnon's address was an excellent one, for his meetings are always well worth attending. Mr. Walker, of St. Andrew's sang a pleasing solo. Rev. Dr. Forrest acted as chairman.

February 11th.—The speaker for the evening was Mr. T. M. Hibbert, of the Senior Class. His subject was "One's Influence." Mr. Hibbert gave a very good address, and several others then spoke briefly.

Arts and Science.—January 27th. The subject for discussion at the first meeting for 1911 was: "Resolved, That the Canadian Press should be restricted." The resolution was supported by Messrs. M. Ferguson and McQueen, and opposed by Messrs. E. J. Fraser and Nelson. The speakers in the general discussion were Messrs. McCabe, Parker, McPherson, L. K. Smith, D. McCurdy and Milne. The resolution was sustained. Mr. A. A. McKenzie acted as critic.

February 3rd.—The resolution read: "Resolved, That it is not advisable for Dalhousie students to get up their own plays for "Theatre Night." Messrs. A. D. McDonald and D. S. McCurdy supported the resolution, and Messrs. J. K. Murchison and Billman opposed it. Messrs. L. K. Smith, Milne, and E. J. Fraser spoke in the discussion. By a vote of the meeting the resolution was defeated. Mr. Hibbert was critic.

February 10th.—The debate was on the subject: "Resolved, That Ireland should have Home Rule." The speakers for the affirmative were Messrs. Bell and Johnstone, and for the negative Messrs. Lyons and Knowlton. Those who took part in the discussion were Messrs. E. J. Fraser, McMillan, L. K. Smith, McQueen and Davis. The resolution was sustained. Mr. H. S. Davis, B. A., acted as critic.

Sodales.—January 26th. The subject for discussion was: "Resolved, That the formation of trusts should be prohibited by law." The resolution was upheld by Messrs. A. K. and G. E. Herman, and opposed by Messrs. L. M. Robinson and W. W. Read. The judges, Messrs. Milne, Hibbert and McQueen, decided for the negative. It was decided to present a medal to each member of the 1911 debating team. A committee, consisting of Messrs. Mavor, Parker, and A. D. McDonald were appointed to select these medals.

February 9th. The question under discussion was: "The Reform of the U. S. C." The discussion was opened by Mr. C. L. Gass, who pointed out the defects in the working of the present Council, and suggested remedies. A spirited general debate followed, shared in by Messrs. Doull, E. J. Fraser, J. C. McDonald, McQueen, Parker, H. S. Davis, Sylvester, Milne, and President Mavor. Mr. E. J. Fraser was elected on the Medal Committee, in place of Mr. Parker, who was unable to act.

U. S. C.—A special meeting was called on February 1st, President Gass in the chair. The purpose of the meeting was to decide whether or not the University Students' Council should interfere in the matter of the College athletic teams taking outside trips. It was moved, seconded and passed, that the U. S. C. take no action in the matter, which is really the affair of the D. A. A. C.

The Junior Dances.—On the evening of February 7th numerous couples, in eager anticipation, wended their way to the Waegwoltic.

Topic-cards were distributed and filled, and those who did not dance sought the inviting cosy-corners or dimly-lighted Conservatory. Refreshments were served, and the topics renewed until about midnight, when the "Jolly Juniors" departed homeward in couples as they had come.

Mrs. Macneill made a charming chaperone.

A week passed, and on St. Valentine's night the gay party was again seen approaching the Waegwoltic.

The rooms were tastefully decorated, and from the topic-cards to the ice-cream the emblem of Cupid predominated. The presence of Professor and Mrs. Magill added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Programmes for "twelve" numbers were provided. Some found enjoyment in dancing, while others invoked the aid of the muse, as they tried to complete a poem suggestive of the evening. When supper was over, in a witty speech Prof. Magill discussed the merits of the best poem, and amid applause Mrs. Magill presented the "sweet" prizes to the winners, Miss Florence Collier and Mr. J. P. McQueen. Thus in its own unique fashion the class of 1912 made merry.

Delta Gamma.—One of the most successful meetings of the year was held at Mrs. Munnis', 72 South Park Street. A very interesting programme was furnished by the Seniors:

Reading—Little Miss Snow.....Miss Gladys Smith.
Song—The Japanese Love Song.....Miss Jean McGregor.
Reading—My Lady of the Decorations ... Miss Marion Outhit.
Play.....The Flower of Yeddo.

Cast of Characters:

Kami.....Miss Margaret McLellan.
Sainara.....Miss Gladys Smith.
Musme (Sazima).....Miss Jean McGregor.
Taiphon.....Miss Helen Armitage.
Song—Japanese Song.....Miss M. Munnis.

The thanks of the girls are due Mrs. Munnis for her kindness in entertaining them, and also to the Seniors for providing such a pleasant evening.

Dalhousie Skating Club.—Last year some skating enthusiasts conceived the idea that Dalhousie was big enough, and Dalhousie students rich enough to afford a special night of their own in one of the city rinks. Unfortunately the weather turned hostile to the promoters, and several of the skating nights the ice in the rinks was almost completely covered with water. However, the zeal of the founders and the rare business ability of W. C. Ross, which we are only beginning to appreciate, brought matters to a successful issue.

This year it was decided to continue the scheme on practically the same basis, and to make it permanent by organizing a Dalhousie Skating Club. This has been done; officers have been elected, and a constitution will shortly be drawn up for the society.

The manager of the South End Rink, being a friend of Dalhousie, offered especially advantageous terms for eight Wednesday nights after Christmas, and his offer was accepted. It was feared for a time that the Club would be in financial difficulties, but the good spirit of the students who had promised to help soon became manifest, and the success of "Dalhousie Night" is now assured. The ice in the rink has been perfect for the five nights which have already passed.

Officers of the Dalhousie Skating Club, '10-'11:

Honorary President.—Professor Murray Macneill.

President.—John MacNeil, B. A.

Vice-President.—Miss Margaret Irving.

Secretary.—A. D. MacDonald.

Treasurer.—H. S. Davis.

Executive Committee.—Collie Sutherland, H. P. Bell, A. M. Johnson, J. K. Murchison.

HOCKEY.

DALHOUSIE, 5; ACADIA, 3.

The Varsity hockey team played their first game at Wolfville on the 25th, where before a large and enthusiastic gathering Acadia was defeated by a score of 5 to 3. The game was clean and exciting throughout.

After two minutes zig-zagging, Murray netted the first goal of the evening from center ice. Three minutes later McGregor found the nets for the second; number one for Dalhousie. McGrath made a number of end to end dribbles, and although Robinson was alone he warded them off until fifteen minutes after the face-off, when McGrath found the net. Two minutes later McGrath scored again on a pass from Thomas. Thomas was found tripping, and was sent to the boards, and a five minute bombarding of the visitors' goal followed, which was only relieved by the whistle announcing half-time.

One minute after the teams faced-off in the second half McGrath got number four by Robinson's pad, and after a shower of shot on Dalhousie, Richmond tallied number two for Acadia. Dalhousie's off-side play was very much in evidence, and Thomas got five minutes for it, while McGrath was warned. Curry and Mylius were found mixing it up a little, and given a rest. One minute before the whistle blew, after a pretty piece of combination work, Patillo got the puck from Potter and scored Acadia's third and last goal. McGregor and McGrath took the puck from the face-off, and the latter scored just before the whistle blew.

"Dick" Smith held the whistle and performed satisfactorily. The line-up was as follows:

DALHOUSIE.		ACADIA.

The opening game in the Inter-faculty Hockey League took place January 27th, when Arts '11 and '13, defeated Medicine by a score of 2—1. The game was very slow and ragged throughout. For the winners, Mylius and Chapman played good hockey, while Wiswell and McNeil were the shining stars for Medicine.

Laws and Arts '12-'14, clashed the following Saturday, with a victory for the latter by a score of 6—4. Thomas, McGrath and McIsaac, all members of the Senior College seven, played well.

For the victors, Day and McCurdy showed good form, while the combined team work of the forwards proved very effective.

DALHOUSIE, 15 ; ST. FRANCIS XAVIER, 4.

For many years these two rivals have been meeting on an ice surface, and upon each occasion Dal. has pulled the losing end, but on Tuesday evening, February 22nd, an enthusiastic attendance saw the yellow and black veterans score a decided victory over Orman's "speed boys" from the Cathedral town. Although the score was very large, still the exhibition was not as one-sided as one would imagine from so large a score.

The game was started at 8.25, and throughout was fast, and at times very rough. There were a number of penalties, and at one time there were two St. Francis and one Dalhousie serving their time in the box. Referee McNamara, as careful and strict as he always is, found it impossible to inflict a penalty for every infringement. All the visitors played good, heady games, McLaughlin, Chisholm and McPhee getting in some excellent combination work, while all the home players worked like clock work.

In the first half eight scores were made for Dalhousie (Wiswell 2, McGrath 4, Thomas 2), and one by St. Francis (Fraser.) During the half there were five penalties, three St. Francis and two Dalhousie, for tripping. R. D. Chisholm, the goal for St. Francis, made many good stops during the first half, and he was the busiest man on the ice. The St. Francis boys might have made many more scores had they shot more carefully; many of their attempts were very poor. The Dalhousie players were much better shots. McKay in goal for the Dalhousians did good work.

The second half opened fast, with the St. Francis boys doing better work. In less than five minutes they netted two goals (both by McPhee) against their opponents' one. They continued for a short time to almost excel their opponents, but Dalhousie came back, and scored seven goals in quick time. In this half there were five penalties—two Dalhousie and three St. Francis

The line up was:

Intercollegiate Debate.

Again the intercollegiate debate, in which Dalhousie takes a part, is to be held in Halifax, and indications point to a deep interest being taken in it, as usual, by the people of the city, as well as by the students.

This year we meet Mount Allison on the platform, and the subject that will be thoroughly thrashed out pro and con will be: "Resolved, That free trade in natural products between Canada and the United States would be beneficial to Canada."

The men who will support the resolution represent the Eurihectorian Society of Mount Allison University, Sackville, N. B. They are Messrs. N. M. Guy, A. M. Knight and Fletcher Peacock. The representatives of the Sodales Debating Society of Dalhousie University, who will oppose the resolution, are Messrs. J. D. Vair, J. C. McDonald and E. T. Parker.

The subject is a live one at the present time, and for this reason will arouse a deep interest in this argumentative contest.

The January King's College Record is right abreast with the high standard set by the former numbers of the year. This issue contains a very instructive and interesting contribution, entitled "Exiles from the States—The Loyalists-Makers of Canada."

A good character sketch of Macbeth, the great Shakesperian centre piece, appears in the January number of The Xaverian. The author, Mr. J. D. Keane, has succeeded in unravelling the great moral of the play in the following succinct paragraph:—

"But there is another side to the later life of our perverted hero, and it is one which the author has been careful to depict with unmistakable clearness. Remorse, that awful gnawing anguish which refuses to release its hold upon the mind of its victim, has seized him. In this consists Macbeth's greatest punishment, the greatest because in a sense self-inflicted, the natural consequence of his own misdeeds."

A double number of the U. N. B. Monthly appears for January and February. It is an excellent number in every respect, but there is probably too much attention devoted to the authors and subjects dealt with in the English class-room. However, the several contributions on Macaulay, Chaucer and Milton and the purely historical sketches of Oliver Cromwell, and "The Rise of Puritanism in England," are entertaining and instructive. A college magazine is a highly proper medium for contributions of this variety, but their suitability for this purpose does not alter the fact that too much sameness grows monotonous.

In the Exchange department of the St. John's College Magazine appears the following:

HOW TO HELP A COLLEGE PAPER.

- First.—Hand in your subscription. Loosen up.
- Second.—Contribute articles. Be enthusiastic.
- Third.—Do not be a snob by your vile criticism.
- Fourth.—If a member of the Staff, do your duty.
- Fifth.—Patronize its advertisers. Be reciprocal.

The Educational Review for February expresses confidence in the future of Dalhousie, and adds a happy word of commendation for our "large-hearted," energetic, and optimistic President:

"Dalhousie is to be congratulated on its bright outlook for the years to come. It is good to see that the large-hearted faith of President Forrest, his energy and optimism are to receive their reward. His motto has been: 'The Past was good, the Present is better, but the best is in the Future.' And Nova Scotia, already rich in school foundations and equipments, will soon see its best educational traditions fulfilled in the noble pile of university buildings that will arise on the North-West Arm."

We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of these other exchanges: Western University Gazette, McGill Martlet, The Scroll, The Collegian, The Mitre, Manitoba College Journal, Queen's University Journal, The Student, McMaster University Monthly, The Oracle, The Gateway, The Intercollegian, Varsity, The Argosy, and Allisonia.

'If you can sleep in class while all about you
Are working hard at Math. or Polycon;
If you can make the faculty never doubt you,
And still don't try to boost yourself along;
If you can wait a lifetime for the money
You loaned a fellow-classmate in distress,
Or if a youthful freshman calls you "sonny,"
Just smile—and smile—and all your wrath suppress;
If you can smoke—and not make smoke in smoking;
If you can laugh—and never show a smile;
If all your lady friends say that you're joking,
When you are very serious all the while;
If you can plug while college teams play hockey,
If you can joke while sophs their hazing try;
If you can work the probs., let others copy,
And yet don't ever steal, nor ever lie;
If you can prove Lavoisier was in error;
Ionic Theories—upset by the score;
If you can make the Dean think you're a terror,
And yet don't talk as though you knew much more;
If you can make a molecule an atom,
With data fit to make a chemist run
Your Eben's friend for life—and even longer,
And—what is more—he'll pluck you sure, my son.

Prof. (telling about picking up a cent in the lower hall).—"If Eben and Archie had only been with me, wouldn't there have been a scramble?"

Doc. L - nds - y (to McR - -, who is examining the frontal bone).—"Where does the brain come in contact with that bone?"

McR - -.—"On the exterior."

Doc.—"Ah! that is where yours is, then."

C. A. McK - y (translating in Latin II.).—"Martiales hædiliæ, the young kids of Mars."

H-ward.—"I suppose the young kids were Romulus and Remus?"

L-rd J-hn.—"It is surprising, in an examination, how many students use two or three sheets of foolscap that might just as well have been left in the inkwell or fountain pen."
