

ALLAN R. BEVAN, is Assistant Professor of English, Dalhousie University, and Assistant Editor of The Dalhousie Review. He obtained his B.A. degree at the University of Saskatchewan, his M.A. at the University of Manitoba, and his Ph.D. at the University of Toronto.

GEORGE WOODCOCK, Assistant Professor of English at the University of Washington, Seattle, is a native of Winnipeg whose writings are internationally known. He has published books on biography, criticism, verse, and travel, and has contributed to many journals, including World Review and the New Statesman in Great Britain, The New Yorker and New Republic in the United States, Preuves in France, Der Monat in Germany, and the Queen's Quarterly and Canadian Forum in Canada. His book on Proudhon will be published in England next spring.

WILLIAM C. SAYRES is an Instructor in Anthropology at Yale. He spent one summer in Nova Scotia doing field work among the Micmac Indians and three years in South America on fellowships from Harvard (where he obtained his M.A. and Ph.D.) and from the National Science Foundation. Most of his previous writings have been professional articles for social science journals, although one of his short stories appeared in the first volume of Story published in book form.

MARY FORSTER MARTIN, is Assistant Professor of English at McMaster University. A native of Great Britain, she has spent most of her life in Canada. She received her B.A. from the University of Alberta and M.A. from the University of London.

FRANCES R. ANGUS, Westmount, P. Q., did post graduate work at McGill, after receiving her Arts degree, as well as at the Sorbonne. For some years she was a member of the staff of the University of Chicago in the section of Modern Languages. She has published text books and anthologies on French literature and her poems have appeared in many publications in Great Britain, the United States, and Canada, including The Dalhousie Review.

E. M. RICHARDSON, is the wife of the lightkeeper on Bon Portage Island. Her book, We Keep a Light, won the Governor-General's Award for Creative Non-Fiction in 1945 and Desired Haven won the All-Canada Fiction Award in 1953. Some of her shorter pieces have appeared in The Dalhousie Review.

JOHANNA RICHTER, is Assistant Professor of German at Dalhousie University.

EDUARD SPRANGER, was Professor of Philosophy at Berlin University and, since 1946, has been at Tübingen University, Germany.

J. RUSSELL HARPER, Saint John, is Archivist-Librarian at the New Brunswick Museum and has contributed articles on New Brunswick History to The Dalhousie Review.

ROBERT F. LEGGET, Ottawa, is Director of the Division of Building Research of the National Research Council. A graduate of the University of Liverpool, he spent some years in heavy construction work in Great Britain and Canada before taking up teaching in Civil Engineering at Queen's and later at the University of Toronto.