LABOUR POLICY AND LABOUR ECONOMICS IN CANADA

by H. D. Woods and Sylvia Ostrey

This is the first comprehensive book covering labour policy and labour economics to be written in Canada in many years, and will immediately become the key guide to Canadian problems in these fields.

THE KITE

by W. O. Mitchell

In a new novel distinguished by beauty of description, humour, and original characterization, W. O. Mitchell tells the memorable story of a television personality, a kite, and the oldest man in the world. By the author of Who Has Seen The Wind and of Jake and the Kid (Winner of the 1962 Stephen Leacock Medal for Humour)

ROYAL MURDOCH

by Robert Harlow

Royal Murdoch, a pioneer in northern British Columbia, was above convention throughout his life. This perceptive first novel, brilliantly written, explores the results of Royal's unconventionality—for his children, his wife, and the people of the town he built.

November, probably $3.95

MACMILLAN OF CANADA

DALHOUSIE UNIVERSITY offers advanced facilities to a great variety of scientists. Here a graduate student observes a metal that has been heated to a temperature approximating that of the sun's surface. In this "levitation melting process" no container is needed. The metal is suspended magnetically in an induction coil. This equipment, used to study phenomena at high temperature, is located in the Chemistry Building of the university.
