

Moon-burst

The pregnant moon is ballooning bigger and bigger,
Then upon your floor she bursts.
Fragments, like marble or milky glass
Are now spilled all over,
And you are on your fours
Gathering these marvels, precious
As a broken Ming or Sung vase.
Above, the sky is pitch dark.

— Keshav Malik