

Kevin Berland studied at Carleton and McMaster, where he wrote a doctoral thesis on Henry Fielding. He is now an Assistant Professor of English at Pennsylvania State University.

Ian Caws's last full-length collection of poems was Boy with a Kite (1981).

Joseph Childers is an Instructor in English at Columbia University, and edits Critical Texts: A Review Journal of Theory and Criticism.

Bina Freiwald is Assistant Professor of English and SSHRCC Canada Research Fellow at Concordia University in Montreal.

Cecelia Frey is the author of a novel, Breakaway (1974) and a collection of poems, the least you can do is sing (1982). She has published short stories and poems in many journals. The Dalhousie Review published "Tamar Ferouin Amongst the Savages" in vol. 62, no. 3.

Janina Konczacki is Professor of History at Mount Saint Vincent University in Halifax.

Ron Miles's poems have appeared in The Fiddlehead, Canadian Literature, Event, Queen's Quarterly and The Dalhousie Review. He is Director of the Arts and Humanities Division at Cariboo College in Kamloops, B.C. and also chairs the B.C. Touring Council.

Peter Mitchell has published articles on Thomas Hardy and Edward Thomas. He is currently teaching at the University of Toronto.

Patricia Monk is Associate Professor of English at Dalhousie University and the author of The Smaller Infinity: The Jungian Self in the Novels of Robertson Davies (University of Toronto Press, 1982).

Mark Nepo lives in East Greenbush, New York. "Vestments Lie" comes from an epic poem about Michelangelo, parts of which have appeared in The Massachusetts Review and The Kenyon Review.

Kenneth Sherman is the author of Words for Elephant Man (Mosaic Press, 1983). The Book of Salt is due to appear shortly.

Marjorie Stone is Assistant Professor of English at Dalhousie. She has contributed articles to Victorian Studies and to The Dalhousie Review.

Donald Story is Associate Professor of Political Studies in the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon.

Frank Strain is Assistant Professor of Economics at Mount Allison University. His work has appeared in the Western Economic Review, the Urban History Review, and in a number of edited volumes.