From Where We Stand

He is close
then far away
and the only figure
on the merry-go-round
of motorcycles and jeeps (the painted ponies could not compare)
with a rope as safety-belt about his waist
circling faster
than he ever expected

But as he grows
accustomed to the speed and learns the round road leaning into the wind
he smiles
not at all over-confident a little, crooked smile three years in the making at who and what
and where he is
for the very first time
