

Full Title: Implementation and evaluation of the Eat, Sleep, Console Model of Care for babies diagnosed with neonatal abstinence syndrome: A Scoping Review Protocol

Authors: Sarah Madeline GALLANT^{1,2}, Morgan MACNEIL¹, Joyce AL-RASSI², Cynthia MANN³, Allyson FALCONER³, Rebecca MCLEOD³, Megan ASTON¹ & Christine CASSIDY^{1,2}.

Affiliations: ¹School of Nursing, Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia; ²The Strengthening Transitions in Care Lab, IWK Health Centre, Halifax, Nova Scotia, ³Women's and Newborn Health Program, IWK Health, Halifax, Nova Scotia

Address correspondence to: Sarah Madeline Gallant, School of Nursing, Dalhousie University, 5869 University Ave, Halifax, Nova Scotia, [sr308168@dal.ca] (902) 698-9512

Acknowledgements: S.G. is a PhD in Nursing Student at Dalhousie University School of Nursing and has had the support of the Master of Science in Nursing Entrance Scholarship, the Margaret Inglis Hagerman Graduate Scholarship, the School of Nursing PhD Scholarship, the Helen Watson Memorial Scholarship, the CIHR- Canada Graduate Scholarship – Master's Program Award and the BRIC NS Student Research Award while writing this scoping review protocol.

Conflicts of Interest: Authors have no conflict of interest to disclose

Data Statement: Data sharing not applicable to this article as no datasets were generated or analysed during the current study

Key Words: Nursing-Models, Neonatal-Nursing, Knowledge, Systematic Review, Evaluation, Implementation, Health Research