

JOHN BRADLEY

FROM THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE FIRST INTERNATIONAL FLAT EARTH SOCIETY CONFERENCE

Scissors were invented by the tongue.

Risk saying nothing and you say everything.

Make us out of bread, baker, that we may be of use.

*

The average human body contains over three million questions.

*

The shortest war in history was between a cricket and a sledgehammer.

*

Something that does not belong to you, friend, leapt from your head into mine.

*

Starting at the age of thirty, the age of eighty approaches at an ever-quickening speed.

*

Each year more people are killed by loco gnomes than from razor blades falling from airplanes.

Due to the earth's flatness, it's difficult to tell if you're holding my toothbrush or the key to the sixth dimension.
